The Artist and the Yogi

After touring Europe for one year under a Canada Council grant, artist Herbert Siebner has returned to Victoria with an old friend, Alfred Schmielewski, a painter turned yogi.

The yogi plans to give courses in Hatha Yoga (physical culture) for beginners and advance students, in the city.

Here he is sitting in the lotus pose, a difficult yoga exercise for occidentals.

The two men were students and graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Berlin, Germany.

It was just luck which brought the two men together after 13 years separation. While in Germany, Mr. Siebner searched for his friend high and low but wasn't able to locate his whereabouts.

One day he spotted a painting by Mr. Schmielewski in a Berlin art gallery. Upon inquiring for his friend's address he was told that the painter had immigrated to Canada and was living in Toronto.

Upon return to Canada, Mr. Siebner finally found his friend on a small island in an Ontario lake, contemplating and communing with nature.

One-Union Plan Opposed by CLC

(By Canadian Press)
The Canadian Labor Congress said today government trustees can take over the Seafarers' International Union of Canada but should not step into bona fide, democratic trade unions.

In a delicately-phrased statement on the Norris report, CLC President Claude Jodoin expressed serious reservations about the proposal to slap a three-man trusteeship on maritime transportation unions to clean up waterfront unionism and possibly weld them into one sailors' union.

"We are opposed in principle to the imposition of government control on a bona fide trade union," said Mr. Jodoin. "At the same time we recognize that the overwhelming weight of evidence shows that the SIU is not a bona fide trade union."

He said the CLC is unable to reconcile the proposal to treat democratic law-abiding unions in the marine field in the same manner as the SIU-rigid trusteeship under federal legislation.

After overnight study of the 318-page report submitted to the government Monday by Victoria-born Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, the CLC president tempered his reservations about the trusteeship proposal with the comment that the conclusions "merit commendation."

The report—which blamed SIU president Hal C. Banks for a lawless, violent situation in the lake shipping industry—was hailed by Mr. Jodoin as proof of the CLC complaints and fears about terror and chaos on the waterfront.

But he criticized the 69-year-old judge for directing all but one of his recommendations at trade unions—even though the report contains some harsh words about the actions of certain shipping companies in supporting Mr. Banks.

"Even casual reading of the report makes it obvious that it would have been impossible for anyone to have created the situation which causes Mr. Justice Norris concern had there not been at least a measure of co-operation from some companies," said Mr. Jodoin.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers endorsed all but one of the major recommendations of the Norris Report.

W. J. Smith, national president of the 35,000-member Canadian union, said the CBRT is "quite willing" to accept government trusteeship over its 3,000 marine members.

However, it opposed the recommendation that would prohibit one union from representing both seamen and engineers on ships.

Canada Steamship Lines vice-president Herbert Cresswell today called the report's criticisms of his company "rot."

He said the report was generally right but didn't think the government was powerful enough to put the recommendations into effect.

Banks, asked to comment, retorted: "Are you kidding?" "We intend to support Banks right down the line," said Pete McGavin, executive secretary of the AFL-CIO's maritime trades department. McGavin described the Vancouver judge as "a man who has never belonged to a union and doesn't know what it takes to operate on the waterfront."

60,000 Federal Civil Servants Get Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Retroactive pay increases for 60,000 federal employees, dating back to last Oct. 1, were announced today by Finance Minister Gordon.

Postal workers, customs and immigration employees, building cleaning staffs and technical workers are the main groups benefitting from the pay boosts, estimated to cost some $17,000,000 a year.

Mr. Gordon's announcement said that apart from hospital employees this is the last major group of federal employees to be dealt with in the current cycle of salary reviews.

He said the government plans to continue the policy of periodic reviews under which salaries of various groups come up for consideration every two years.

"The government is pushing forward with the preparatory work that must be done with a view to introducing a system of collective bargaining for the

Mr. Bennett sez the Columbia win made him "very humble." Now that's quite a day's work.

Judge Norris claims the "do not ship" rule doesn't apply to Hal Banks.

The postmen won't stage any slow-down on their way to the pay-wicket.

blamed his federal colleagues in Ottawa for Golden butcher Keenleyside's poor showing, a decline in the popular vote from 23 to 21 per cent.

"During the campaign, the budget furore and B.C. signing of the Columbia agreement with Ottawa it became a question of whether we could maintain the lead or drop to second or even third," he said.

HIGH HOPES

The Liberals started with high hopes, through federal associations and with the tremendous by-election victory of Vancouver-Point Grey of last December still resounding.

For Mr. Fulton it was the first active campaign since he left Ottawa to lead what he calls "the new Conservative party" in B.C.

For Mr. Strachan it was a bitter repudiation of his hopes that new Conservative strength would come from Social Credit and allow his candidates to slip in at the next general election.

VERY HUMBLE

As for Mr. Bennett, he said it made him "very humble." He said his party withstood "a terrific attack" from the opposition.

Mr. Strachan, though, charged Social Credit with using campaign tactics that would "have made politicians of the coalition days ashamed."

The turnout, despite heavy rain, was high for a by-election, with over 67 per cent of the 4,422 eligible voters going to the polls.

The standing in the 52-seat legislature remains unchanged: Social Credit 31, NDP 16, Liberal 5.

they also need to be examined in relation to foreign and economic policy, and in this wider context they often raise further issues which have a considerable political content.

"Conversely, our political relations with other members of the Commonwealth and with foreign countries bear directly on our defence policy, and the requirements of the government's financial and economic policies equally affect the size, disposition and equipment of the services.

"These broad issues engage the collective responsibility of ministers. Subject to the supreme authority of the prime minister and the cabinet, they will be dealt with by a committee on defence and overseas policy, which will meet under the chairmanship of the prime minister."

The chief of the defence staff and services chiefs of staff still will continue to be invited to attend full cabinet meetings on appropriate occasions.

The collective advice of the chiefs of staffs committee—which in the pyramid of control comes immediately below the defence council—will be tendered to the secretary of state by the chief of the defence staff.

The report made these further points:

"The line of authority and responsibility of the secretary of state will run unbroken through military, scientific and administrative staffs, through the ministry. In practice, however, he will delegate much of his authority.

"There will be no change in the relationships and traditional links between the sovereign and the three services, and units of the services," the report said, adding that the Queen had consented to assume the title of "Lord High Admiral."

"She will fly the flag of the Lord High Admiral at sea and at naval establishments ashore on official occasions, with the royal standard." This would perpetuate the name of an office which went back 600 years.

The chief of staffs committee will remain in its present form.

DROP 'IMPERIAL'

The chief of the imperial general staff—army chief of staff—in future will be called chief of the general staff, dropping the word "imperial."

Among new organizations to be set up are a defence operations executive; a defence operations requirements staff; a defence signals staff; and a defence intelligence staff.

The present defence research policy committee will be replaced by two new committees, both chaired by the chief scientific adviser. They will work closely with the defence operational requirements staff and the defence secretariat.

A weapons development committee will be established to see that the weapons program is closely matched to available resources, current policy and operational requirements.

The civil aviation ministry will continue as a separate department, but maintain close links with the new defence ministry.

Necessary parliamentary legislation of setting up the re-organization program will be introduced during the coming autumn.

PAY BOOSTS

civil service," his statement added.

The pay increases for postal workers come in the wake of repeated warnings that the mail workers would adopt a "work-to-rule" policy if the raises weren't forthcoming. This would involve a strict adherence to postal regulations which would have the result of slowing mail handling.

MAY SLOW MAILS

An official of a Postal Employee Staff Association recently said the workers would follow a work-to-rule approach if the increases weren't satisfactory. Letter-carriers receive a $360 annual increase, to a maximum $4,380, and mail handlers get $300 increase, to a maximum $3,960.

No increases were made for postal messengers, examiners Grade 1 and 2 in defence department inspection services, aircraft mechanic learners and aircraft mechanics Grades 1 and 2.

Customs excise officers, Grade 2, and immigration officers, Grade 3, receive a $360 increase to a maximum $4,680. Annual increases for some other groups, with maximum salaries in brackets: Cleaning service man $200 ($3,500); watchman $200 ($3,620); General repairman and equipment operator, Grade 1 $200 ($3,800); technician, Grade 1 $240 ($5,040); chief draftsman $420 ($8,700).

Civil service associations expressed general satisfaction today with the pay increases. Spokesmen for the two organizations representing postal workers said they did not believe the threatened "work-to-rule" slowdown would be introduced. Both groups had warned they would call the slowdown unless pay demands were met "within reason."

One of the groups asked for a $600 annual increase, the other for $500. The increases awarded by Mr. Gordon ranged between $300 and $360.

NDP Charges U.S. Consul Interfered

OTTAWA (CP)—A New Democratic Party MP charged Monday that the United States consul-general in Vancouver tried to influence voters in Monday's provincial by-election in British Columbia at the instigation of Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

H. W. Herridge, member for Kootenay West, said in the Commons that the consul, Avery Peterson, showed "extremely bad taste" by taking copious notes at an election meeting of the NDP at Golden in Columbia constituency Saturday.

He also accused the federal government of surrendering its sovereign rights and "promoting the Balkanization of Canada" by letting Premier Bennett negotiate directly with the United States on the Columbia River power treaty.

Mr. Herridge said the consul travelled from Vancouver to Golden last week and took notes at NDP and other political rallies.

"His presence was resented by many of those electors and some considered it a subtle form of influence, brought in at the instigation of Premier Bennett."

GOT PROTEST WIRES

He said he received several telephone calls and telegrams from voters in Columbia riding, protesting against the presence of the American diplomat.

CHARGES DENIED

But Mr. Peterson completely denied the charge.

"It is entirely preposterous. The last time I spoke to the premier was May 30 at Adlai Stevenson's reception," he said. "I attended only publicly-advertised meetings, spoke to no one and asked no questions. I just took my notes."

Speaking during consideration of an appropriation bill, Mr. Herridge said the federal government has a tacit agreement with Premier Bennett to let him negotiate with the U.S. government on the price the U.S. would pay for Canadian-owned power under the Columbia treaty.

'STAND UP FOR CANADA'

"We in this group protest this weak-kneed attitude on the part of the government of Canada. We say to them, 'Stand up for Canada.'"

He said only the federal government has the right to conduct diplomacy or negotiate international treaties, under the constitution, established practice and court decisions.

If each province started to negotiate with foreign countries, national unity would be threatened.

Mr. Herridge said Premier Bennett has made trips to Washington to negotiate terms of the Columbia treaty and that the premier also acknowledged that he had retained as a special adviser Robert Anderson, treasury secretary in former president Eisenhower's cabinet.

This was an unfortunate precedent. The federal government should conduct the negotiations with the U.S. This would not rule out consultations between Ottawa and the B.C. government.

ENGINEER FEARS WORST

Grudging Approval Given To Hazardous Left Turns

Provincial department of highways has agreed to allow left turns on to Dupplin Road in its latest traffic plans for Douglas Street.

But it has done so provisionally and with the expectation that accidents will result.

Saanich councillors have been baffled by the proposed regulations which include a central-lane for left turns both ways in some blocks. And they have supported merchants who felt the regulations added to the burden imposed by the parking ban on Douglas.

HELPING MAYFAIR?

Several merchants, notably Clay Bruce, manager of Bruce's Pharmacy, 3220 Douglas, see the proposals as part of a plan to benefit only the Mayfair shopping development.

But in a letter to Saanich public works committee Monday night, J. H. Harding, senior traffic engineer for the highways department, denied the charges.

"Despite what has been said in premature newspaper accounts," he wrote, "the object of the proposed two-way left turn lane on Douglas was to legally permit and to facilitate left turns into and out of as many entrances to small businesses and local streets as possible."

SHORT BLOCK

Mr. Harding said left turns on to Dupplin and Roderick had been decided against because of the shortness of the block from Tolmie to Cloverdale, and the volume of left turns on to Tolmie.

"Even now, left turns to Dupplin is at times very hazardous," he said. "The line-up of vehicles waiting to turn left to Tolmie, after Mayfair opens, will make left turns to Dupplin risky and almost impossible," he warned.

HAZARDOUS

But he said the department was willing to allow left turns to Dupplin temporarily "while pointing out the resulting situation will be hazardous."

Mr. Harding also said such turns would be prohibited if "an undue number of accidents" resulted. Left turns on to Roderick still are forbidden.

Younger Set Fills Eyes of Camera

Babies and children remain the most popular subjects for amateur shutterbugs, and a bumper crop of baby pictures were entered in the second week of the Times amateur snapshot contest.

Best of the lot, in the opinion of Times judges, was Mrs. Walter Cook's snap of a toddler with a croquet mallet taking a determined swing at the ball. She lives on Kemp Lake Road, RR 2.

Honorable mentions in that category went to T. F. Coverdale, 3576 Elliston, and C. H. Banks, 849 Richmond.

SNOOZING

Activities, well... best activity shot was taken by Mrs. F. C. Desrosiers, 657½ Head Street, who caught her husband having a quiet snooze. Mrs. W. Gaunt, 1936 Neil, got an honorable mention.

Of the many fine entries in the Scenes and "tabletops" category, best was judged to be a sunrise shot of Cowichan Lake, taken by F. H. Leacock, 510 Normandy Road.

Honorable mentions went to L. Bennett, 4030 Martha—be got three, for three photographs in this category. Next to children, amateur photographers like animals, and the animal life category was well filled.

Best of the entries was taken by H. Szmuniowski, 784 Interurban Road, and was a study showing Canada geese in silhouette on Portage Inlet.

In that category, honorable mentions went to Miss G. L. Vessey, 173 Egerton, and Mrs. Margot Galbraith, No. 210, 2151 Haultain.

This week's contest closes Saturday noon. Winners in last week's contest got $10 weekly prizes, and are eligible for $25 overall prizes for the six-week contest.

Their photos will be published in the Times starting Wednesday.

Overall winners will be entered in a national contest, with prizes up to $1,000.

Tories Name Fruit Grower

The Conservatives took another step in rebuilding their provincial party Monday night, nominating a candidate for North Okanagan.

The choice is Harry Byatt, 42, a fruit grower at Oyama, president of the Vernon Fruit Growers' Co-operative and also head of the Conservative Okanagan-Revelstoke federal organization.

Mr. Fulton said the Conservatives will next concentrate on Comox, where a nominating convention is planned for August.

U.S. Pilot Killed

LONDON (Reuters)—One American fighter pilot was killed and a second escaped without injury when their supersonic jets collided over England's east coast Monday.

Former finance minister George Nowlan suggested that the government also pay the prime minister's bills to the National Capital Commission for upkeep of the grounds and gardens at the residence. Prime Minister Pearson was absent from the House during the exchange.

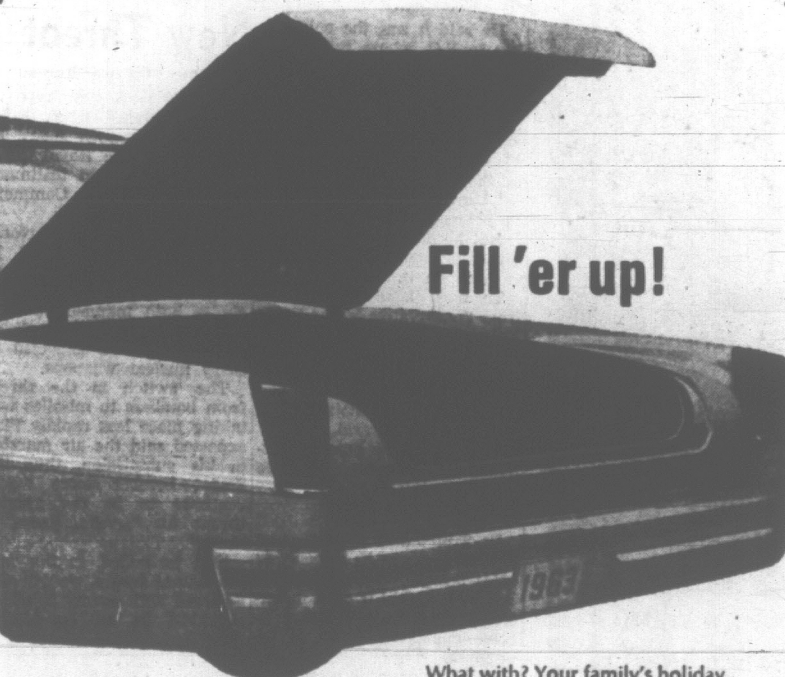

More Money for PM NDP Leader Request

OTTAWA (CP)—The prime minister of Canada should get a better deal financially, opposition members suggested in the Commons Monday.

New Democratic Party Leader Douglas noted that the prime minister pays an annual rent of $5,000 to the government for his official residence at 24 Sussex Drive. The prime minister also had to pay his chauffeur and provide a limousine out of his pocket.

Garden Apartment Wilts

Residents of Esquimalt's Rockheights subdivision won their battle against a proposed garden apartment development Monday night—without the vote of the councillor who led the fight.

Council unanimously turned down a zoning bylaw that would have allowed the development.

There was one abstention, that of Ernest Cassels, who was elected in a by-election July 10 on his down-with-garden apartments platform.

Mr. Cassels, who was sworn in at Monday night's meeting, cast no votes during the meeting. He said he wanted to familiarize himself with council work before voting.

About 30 Rockheights residents at the meeting gasped when they heard a letter read supporting the development.

Letter was from Hummel and Warren, lawyers for the building firm of Marquardt Construction Ltd. It severely criticized citizens' behavior at a public hearing on the proposal.

'UNRULY MOB'

"The question simply appears to be whether to bow to an unruly mob, whose leaders quite obviously do not understand the democratic process, and at a public meeting were quite unable to attack the proposed bylaw on anything but an emotional level..."

"May we say again how sorry we are that a proposal put forth in the best of good faith has caused each and every member of your council so much personal discomfort..."

Letter was signed by lawyer David Hummel.

Councillors refused to accept a motion by Coun. Cassels that an apology from the lawyer be demanded.

INACCURATE

However, they all agreed that the letter's description of public meeting was inaccurate.

"They (the citizens) were not an unruly mob," said Coun. E. L. DeCosta.

"I thought they were quite unruly."

$20,000
Marquardt Construction Ltd., the developing company, offered Esquimalt council $20,000 for the site, a rocky piece of property between Old Esquimalt Road and the Highrock cairn.

One-third of the total price was paid to the council, on the understanding that if the necessary rezoning bylaw were not passed, the deal would be off.

Proposal was for a 97-suite garden apartment development whose units would rent for between $115 and $175 per month.

BUDGET BATTLE RESUMES

Opposition Will Demand Changes in Tax Measures

U.S. CITIZEN

Target of a deportation effort last December John F. (Jake the Barber) Factor became a United States citizen Monday before a judge in Los Angeles. The British-born Factor, 70, called himself "the luckiest man alive." The ex-convict made headlines in 1933 when he said he had been kidnapped by Roger Touhy, prohibition beer baron. Touhy was sentenced to 99 years, paroled after 25, and shot to death a few days later. Factor has amassed a fortune in recent years as a real estate operator.

OTTAWA (CP)—The battle of the budget resumes today in the Commons amid indications the opposition will put heavy pressure on the minority Liberal government to change some of its tax measures.

Having already survived a non-confidence motion based on the June 13 budget as a whole, the government will now ask the House to approve the detailed budget resolutions and thus give formal, retroactive sanction to Finance Minister Gordon's announced measures.

Debate today will begin with the relatively minor tariff amendments.

The government has not said which resolution will be debated after the tariff measures.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) served notice in the Commons Monday that the Progressive Conservatives will introduce amendments to several sections of the budget resolutions.

"They must not pass as they stand now," Mr. Aiken said.

'PLANNED NEW ELECTION'
He said he had evidence to prove that the government intended at one point to call a new election this fall, but that this plan had been dropped after a storm blew up over the budget.

"The minister of finance (Mr. Gordon) has done one good thing with his budget in that he has left the government in such bad shape that they will not dare go to the country for a long time," he said.

Monday the Commons marked the end of two months of work since the opening of Parliament by passing the fourth government bill of the session.

It was a special appropriation bill, giving Parliament the opportunity to "approve" retroactively government spending of $853,162,680 in the 1962-63 fiscal year—the amount spent last year without Parliamentary authority. The 1962-63 estimates were never approved because of the interruptions occasioned by the 1962 and 1963 general elections.

Government spending during the period was under the authority of interim supply bills and a governor-general's warrants.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) accused the Conservatives of having ing ignored Parliament's ancient rights to control the country's purse strings.

Former finance minister George Nowlan and Mr. Aiken replied that the Liberals, Social Credit and New Democratic MPs deliberately wrecked the last Parliament by delaying and obstructing government legislation.

In other business, the House continued a humdrum general debate on a measure to establish a 25-member Economic Council of Canada. The bill still awaits second reading—approval in principle—and is unlikely to come up again this week.

Bomb Scare Delays Ship

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Alaska cruise ship Canadian Prince sailed from here Monday night after a two-hour delay while police and crew members checked the ship for a bomb which an anonymous caller said was aboard the ship.

The vessel, subject of a dispute involving the Seafarers International Union (Ind.) was stopped by police as she headed out of the harbor. The ship stood by off Point Atkinson while the search was made and then continued on her way. She was carrying several passengers and a cargo of freight for Alaska and other northern points.

The union dispute flared when the SIU claimed it was locked out because a crew from the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC) was being used.

U.K. Paper Was Used, Probe Shows

OTTAWA (UPI)—Justice Minister Chevrier said Monday RCMP investigation has shown the now-famous "Butterworth Letter" was typewritten on paper used in London, England.

"The Butterworth Letter," a forged document in which U.S. Ambassador to Canada L. Walton Butterworth congratulated Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson on his nuclear weapons stand, was circulated toward the end of the recent election campaign.

Both Butterworth and Pearson immediately branded it a forgery, but Conservative front-bencher Gordon Churchill brandished it in the House of Commons after the campaign.

Pearson was opposition leader when the letter was first circulated.

Chevrier gave few details about the investigation beyond saying the probe did not show that the letter was produced by a composite or Montage process. He said, however, that photographic techniques could have obscured such evidence.

He also said neither of the two machines in the ambassador's office was used to type the letter.

Informed sources said the typewriter was a kind used in West Germany. The justice minister did not indicate whether the investigation had been completed.

The forged documents were sent to Canadian newspapers under a London, Eng., postmark.

Chevrier made no comment when asked by Maurice J. Moreau (L—Toronto Scarborough) whether Churchill would be asked to make a public apology to Butterworth.

Chinese Blast Soviet For Assisting India

MOSCOW (AP)—Chinese and Soviet delegates took another recess today in their "peace talks" as Moscow and Peking accused each other of attempting to split the Communist world.

The Chinese maintained silence over whether they would continue to meet with the Russians.

Meanwhile, Peking for the first time publicly attacked Soviet economic and military aid to India during last fall's Chinese-Indian border war.

The Soviet press was flooded with attacks on the Chinese. Abandoning the polite phrasing which even a week ago characterized most Soviet comments on China, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda blasted "the erroneous views and actions of the leaders of the Communist party of China which weaken the unity of the world socialist camp and the international Communist movement."

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia Monday accused the Chinese of trying to shift the centre of international communism from the Kremlin and of setting colored races against white.

The Chinese attack on India was aimed at the point where the split occurs.

The Soviet government has been trying to keep an open door into neutralist India with much publicized aid. It is a sample of the use of economic aid by which the Soviet government hopes to pursue the Communist revolution without risking nuclear war.

China argues that such aid should go to Communist and socialist countries already pursuing the revolution against capitalism.

The Chinese said the Soviet aid to India played into American hands by lightening the Western burden.

It also strengthened Indian Prime Minister Nehru in a policy of aggravating differences between Russia and China, the official Peking People's Daily said.

Meanwhile, an Indian weapons-seeking delegation left New Delhi by plane for Moscow today to begin a three-week tour of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia. Although the Soviet Union has made no specific promise of further arms aid, Indian sources said Nehru's government hopes to obtain aircraft, light tanks and other items.

Columbia's Verdict

COLUMBIA HAS REAFFIRMED its allegiance to Social Credit and has given Mr. Bennett the byelection victory he so desperately needed after the rebuff of Point Grey.

The seat won by Mr. Frank Greenwood yesterday has been in the government's fold since the sweep of 1952. To have lost it would have been disastrous for Mr. Bennett.

The opposition parties, knowing that, gave to Columbia more attention than the byelection might otherwise have received, and their efforts were more than matched by the administration.

Those who voted Social Credit have rendered political payment for the material benefits of the Rogers Pass highway and have apparently been favorably impressed by the premier's recently announced hopes for an early start on the Columbia project.

Mr. Bennett can take satisfaction in the fact that he has not only retained a seat, but, even more important, has avoided losing one. Had his candidate been defeated his image in the provincial political field would have been seriously damaged.

The surprise of the Columbia poll, however, is the remarkable showing of the Conservative party in second place. This is a kind of moral victory for Mr. Fulton who could not have expected to win the seat. It was obvious from Mr. Bennett's speeches, moreover, that he feared Mr. Fulton more than he feared either of the other opposition leaders and his judgment was right. Nevertheless, Mr. Fulton has failed again to elect a single member to the legislature and his campaign can hardly be said to have got off the ground yet.

The Liberals, flushed by the success of Dr. Pat McGeer at Point Grey, had looked hopefully to Columbia for another expression of resurging strength and were disappointed, running third. The close identity of their candidate with the federal Liberal organization, which at first seemed promising, was apparently no asset and the vote probably reflected disenchantment in Columbia with the Gordon budget and the controversies it stirred.

The New Democratic party has suffered a much heavier blow. When his candidate ends at the bottom of the poll Mr. Strachan is in no position to claim that he represents the wave of the provincial future.

Mr. Bennett calls Columbia "a landslide victory." He doubtless realizes that if 37 per cent voted for Social Credit, 63 per cent of the voters did not.

Costs Going Up Anyhow

REEVE GEORGE MURDOCH shows a natural concern over the prospect of increased costs to Oak Bay through the joint use of Saanich court facilities—a policy required by the attorney-general's department.

He adds that the Archer report said the municipal police force is supplying good service to the people and "that's all we are required to do."

But the Archer report also notes that anticipated municipal growth will necessitate increase in the number of policemen and that Oak Bay now escapes costs for some specialized services furnished free by the RCMP.

Moreover, a small item in this newspaper Monday, noted the problem of integrated police work posed by limited personnel and equipment in Oak Bay. When a call for assistance in catching two speeders went out from Victoria, the reply came back that Oak Bay at the time had only one car on the road and it was engaged on another job. So the speeders were not caught.

Such incidents may not bother Reeve Murdoch, but they point to the fact that demands, or requests, are sometimes made of Oak Bay police which they cannot fulfil and will be able to fulfil only if the force is enlarged — which means more expenditure. Costs are going up, with or without implementation of the Archer report if the force is to give the service expected of it as an integral unit in the law enforcement agencies of this community. And, Oak Bay has excellent reason to appreciate the assistance it draws from other police in the locality.

The Sportsman

IN HIS PUBLIC STRUGGLE with Prime Minister Macmillan it is interesting to hear Mr. Harold Wilson's private opinion of his opponent. Removing the mask of parliamentary politeness, the Labor Party leader recently gave his assessment of the Prime Minister with surprising candor, as follows:

"The cleverest politician of our age. An adept politician, not a statesman, not a great prime minister. A great party leader—in the Conservative context—yes. The man who could pick up the pieces of Suez and rebuild them into a machine, making pro-Suez noises and pulling out all the time. He's no ordinary politician."

On the other hand, Mr. Wilson pays a high tribute to Mr. Macmillan's personal character:

"In parliamentary terms he's a sportsman—that's what I like about him. He likes the cut and thrust of debate and so do I. In the debate on the Selwyn Lloyd crisis in 1961, I made a very rough speech. Their policies it seemed to me, had finally broken down and we had laid ourselves open to the taunt of the 'sick man of Europe.' He sat and listened to it all. I think it really hurt. But when I sat down he lifted his hands up and gave me the boxer's handshake. That was the parliamentary generosity. I may make all kinds of mistakes in the coming months. I shan't make the mistake of underestimating him."

From this distance one would judge that Mr. Wilson had better not.

The Electoral Map

COMPARED TO MANY OTHER problems now before the Canadian Parliament the redistribution of its electoral boundaries is a small matter. But, so far as Parliament is concerned, redistribution can be arranged in an hour or two.

The present government, like its predecessor, has agreed that the actual revision of the electoral map shall be conducted by a non-partisan commission instead of a parliamentary committee, as in the past. Now that all parties seem to agree on this sensible plan it could be covered by a simple piece of legislation with brief, if any, debate.

It is important that the legislation should be passed now because redistribution is a lengthy and complex business. The proposed commission can hardly complete its task before the end of 1966 at the earliest and by that time another general election will be on the horizon. If it is not precipitated in the meantime by some crisis in a Parliament of minorities.

The House of Commons should be able to find an hour or two for the passage of a statute which apparently everyone desires and thus avoid another election grossly misrepresenting the geographical distribution of the voters.

FROM WASHINGTON

By MAX FREEDMAN

Cautious Eye on 'Non-Aggression'

THERE is no visible enthusiasm in the White House or the State Department for the Russian suggestion that the members of NATO and the Warsaw Pact should sign a non-aggression agreement. But the willingness of the Kennedy administration to consider this proposal, while remaining cautious about its prospects, is yet another example of the President's desire to give Russia every chance to make a contribution to peace.

Freedman

In the past the United States treated all overtures to a non-aggression pact with summary disdain. The usual answer was that the United Nations provided a universal pact against aggression; and Russia could best serve the cause of peace by becoming a good member of the United Nations instead of thinking of new pieces of paper with which to restrain an aggressor. This is still valid but it no longer is regarded as settling the matter.

There can be no progress unless we begin by understanding that the entire concept of a non-aggression pact looks very different to a Russian than it does to an American.

The American experience teaches us to believe that this particular kind of treaty is a solemn utility. We remember the pathetic reliance on non-aggression pacts in the blundering years before 1939. Nor can we forget Russia's own contribution to this anthology of shame and betrayal. Russia was bound to the Baltic States by a pact of non-aggression before she bullied and bludgeoned them into servitude. The Molotov-Ribbentrop Pact may have been advertised as a monument to the spirit of non-aggression. It was in reality a covenant between bandits and a signal for war. We may be excused for thinking that a non-aggression pact can be signed only by nations that trust each other and therefore do not need it; or by nations with no confidence in each other who therefore do not intend to observe it. In the first case, the agreement is superfluous, in the other it is a trap.

But the Russians have been taught since their revolution in 1917 to see a special virtue in these declarations against aggression. As the Soviet Union has towered into military power we tend to forget its years of isolation and weakness when it feared capitalist encirclement or another invasion from Western Europe. But the Russians have never forgotten, and to this day they make a non-aggression pact a test of good intentions. This faith in this prejudice echoes through Communist documents with unbroken emphasis across the years. It explains Russia's fear about NATO, and her stubborn retention of these anxieties despite American assurances.

Conflict on NATO

We always say that NATO is aimed at aggression and not at Russia. The Russians do not see it that way. They see NATO as the excuse for keeping American power in Europe, threatening Russia with missile bases, arming Germany as part of Western strength, and pointing the nuclear peril at Russia's cities.

Before we dismiss all this as a vindictive falsehood, we might remember the diverse treatment meted out to Russia in the Marshall Plan and in NATO. The Communist countries had the chance to benefit from the Marshall Plan. Czechoslovakia actually wished to join but was forbidden to do so by Moscow's orders. When Russia not so many years ago offered to join NATO as part of a general European system of security, her proposal was treated with surprise and then was rejected with indignation. Russia would join NATO only to wreck it. But the Russians now are saying that if NATO and the Warsaw Pact are in fact two opposed systems, then a non-aggression agreement between them would reduce tensions and provide a foundation for other peaceful gains.

Direction Finder

That is the Russian case and it will be examined in Moscow by Mr. Harriman who will report to Washington which will then consult with all the NATO members. A non-aggression pact will not amount to recognition of East Germany; nor will it confer respectability on that regime; nor will it alter the Western commitment that German unity is to be achieved without the use of force. Disengagement, the withdrawal of troops, the establishment of what Russia calls "zones of peace," all these matters are not on the present agenda. Mr. Harriman's job is to find out where Russia wants us to go and whether we can journey together in safety and honor.

But the Kremlin should know that the non-aggression pact is not being laughed at in the White House. It is being studied very carefully, and Russia will find no impenetrable American opposition if she can make a convincing case for such an agreement. The onus—and the opportunity—now fall on Russia.

SKIMMING THE 'SKIN BOOKS'

By CHRISTOPHER DAFOE

Building 'Fires for the 'Girlie Mags'

ALL over Canada fires are being prepared for what the flint-eyed reformers call "girlie magazines." For months past the news columns of Canadian newspapers have been spiced with accounts of protest meetings and other forms of action on the part of women's groups in every part of the country. The cry is everywhere the same: "Girlie magazines corrupt youth."

Those who publish these magazines and those who read them could hardly be expected to support this view.

Among publishers and readers they are known as "men's entertainment magazines" and the more expensive publications like Playboy, Cavalier and Nugget, are regarded by some of their readers as being on an intellectual level almost equal to magazines like The Atlantic and Encounter.

The gulf that lies between the cheap and the most expensive of the "men's entertainment magazines" is almost as vast as the gulf that lies between Action Comics and The Reporter but there is a bridge that links all the popular men's magazines. This bridge is the undraped female form.

Years ago when the now highly respectable and literate magazine Esquire was regarded in many quarters as a purple fountain of wickedness "The Esquire Girl" was considered the last word in pictorial sex. The "Esquire Girl" was always a brush drawing, never a photograph.

Usually Dressed

She was usually dressed in bathing costume, step-ins, nightie or shorts and she was always talking to some unseen lover on the telephone. The drawing was always accompanied by a short doggerel verse in which the attributes of the young woman, always named in honor of the months of the year, were listed.

The cover symbol of Esquire in those days was a little man with bulging eyes. Twenty years ago the popeyed man was a valid indication of what the reader was likely to encounter inside the magazine. During the last few years, however, Esquire has grown up. It still publishes pictures of attractive women but one is more likely to find a picture of Joan Crawford in a cocktail dress than Jayne Mansfield in the altogether.

Playboy, the first and most successful of the slick, highly-priced flesh and "philosophy" magazines, was founded by Chicago publisher Hugh Hefner, a former employee of Esquire who obviously became unhappy with the way things were going at the older magazine.

Hefner's Playboy, which features a roguish-looking rabbit as its cover symbol, rapidly found a large audience, a large advertising following and a large and varied school of imitators.

Playboy, which sells for 60 cents, makes its appeal to the younger man with money who considers himself something of a man of the world. The Playboy reader, inspired by the editorial matter in the magazine, sees himself as the owner of a sports car, the possessor of a fabulous apartment with swimming-pool, and a devil with the women. He also sees himself as a bit of a thinker, a bit of a gourmet and a bit of an art buff.

The Playboy reader is also, or seems to himself to be, a sportsman but the sports he follows are sports car racing, bullfighting and tennis. The Playboy

As Our Readers See It

We Are Canadians

While we are on the subject of national symbols such as a distinctive national flag, I think that it is time for Canadians to develop a pride in their own nation.

In four years time we will have been in existence as a nation for one hundred years. We are not British, Swedes, Irish, Scotch, or Ukrainians: we are Canadians. With all due respect to the wonderful heritage of freedom that we owe to Great Britain, it is high time that we started thinking of ourselves as a nation, not as a group of exiles from the old world.

MAUDLING

But He Looks So Un-Tory

By ANTHONY SAMPSON

BRITAIN'S Conservative Party is beginning to be obsessed by a single dominating problem. It is referred to, tactfully, as the "leadership crisis." That means, in effect, how to get rid of the boss, Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. The crisis began in February when, after the breakdown of the Common Market talks, a group of Tories were determined to oust their Prime Minister. But the attempt failed miserably, and the rebels had to wait until the Profumo furor in June for their next attempt. That too, failed.

To depose a Conservative Premier—often though it has been done in the past—is not easy. The ruling powers of the Premier, which are coming more and more to resemble a President's, give him great leverage over his rivals. He can move them around, give them awkward jobs, sack some and divide others. If they fail, he can blame them; if they succeed, he can take the credit.

After six and a half years in office, Mr. Macmillan is still without a very obvious successor. All the names that have been confidently hailed in the past—R. A. Butler, Iain Macleod, Lord Home, Ted Heath—have somehow fallen into the shadows.

'Efficiency Man'

But one man does seem to be emerging, slowly and without obvious confidence, as a likely successor—Mr. Reginald Maudling, the big, smiling, amiable Chancellor of the Exchequer. He has many of the right attributes—he is 46, very happily married, very clever, and very much a modern "efficiency man." He has managed, while serving Mr. Macmillan quite loyally, to keep his distance from his master, and, unlike many of his colleagues, he has shown every sign of a mind of his own.

He has been skeptical of the Common Market, lukewarm about the independent deterrent, and strongly opposed to the cautious financial policies of his predecessor in the Treasury, Mr. Selwyn Lloyd. And he is, contrary to his appearance, ambitious.

"He reminds me a little of Charles James Fox," one of his colleagues said of him. "He's one of those very ambitious men who have acquired indolent habits as a kind of counter-weight to their ambition."

He and Mr. Macmillan are not close. Mr. Maudling, it is said, regards his Prime Minister as something of an old windbag; and Mr. Macmillan has no affinity for this unromantic, middle-class intellectual Chancellor.

In some ways they resemble the two rivals at Bonn, Dr. Adenauer and Professor Erhard. Mr. Macmillan, like Dr. Adenauer, is much older than his rival; he belongs to an earlier, more patrician era of politics. Like Dr. Adenauer, Mr. Macmillan has become something of a figure of comedy in his own country, with almost the whole Press and much of his parliamentary party against him; yet he has been very difficult to dislodge.

Mr. Maudling, like Professor Erhard, is an intellectual economist who finds much of party politics a bore; and he has become increasingly impatient with the vanities and evasiveness of his boss.

No Stirring Speeches

The arguments of Tories against Mr. Maudling are quite strong. He often seems not to take politics very seriously, and might occasionally be confused with a right-wing Socialist. He is bad at making stirring speeches, and sometimes seems lukewarm at the very idea of leadership. With his feet up, smiling and shrugging his big shoulders, talking in the most reasonable way, insisting on seeing both sides of the question, he seems the opposite of the old Churchill-type romantic Tory leader.

He is not very keen on much of the accepted Tory dogma. And, perhaps most serious of all, he is very young. His contemporaries, who include Macleod, Heath and Enoch Powell, cannot be expected to be enthusiastic. At 46, he may well have 30 years of politics ahead of him; and since most of the Cabinet are older than he is, this longevity is not very welcome. If we find it so difficult to get rid of one leader, they ask themselves, are we wise to commit ourselves to another for 20 years?

But the Conservatives show signs of gradually getting used to the idea of Maudling. Who else, after all, is there? Mr. Butler still has the aura of defeat. Mr. Macleod has been eclipsed since he left the Colonial Office; Mr. Heath has been put out of joint since the breakdown of the Common Market talks; Lord Home shows no signs of entering the fray; Lord Hailsham from time to time moves into the forefront, like an unpredictable comet, but never seems quite credible as a Prime Minister.

Mr. Maudling may be too young; he may not be a complete leader; he may not even be wholly Tory. But he looks, sounds, and probably is reliable and sane. And at this juncture, those qualities loom large.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA—When Greek met Greek, the subsequent tug-of-war could scarcely have caused greater rancor than the present match of Liberal against Liberal of Jean Lesage against Lester Pearson.

Indeed, the Quebec premier has become the national Liberal party's "foe within." By hurling demands, remonstrances and hurtful accusations against the Pearson government, Premier Lesage resembles a Trojan Horse behind the Liberal walls.

Some of his former parliamentary colleagues go so far as to specify the part of the horse he most resembles. Even John Diefenbaker is not causing the federal Liberals as much anxiety as this fellow Liberal in Quebec City, whose tactics to gain his own ends show little concern for party or personal loyalties. In the general astonishment and consternation among Liberals, many of those who had regarded Lesage as a potential successor to Pearson are changing their minds.

Premier Lesage appears to have become partly a convert to and partly the captive of French-Canadian nationalist ideas and pressures. He is in a situation where he must lead or lose support among his own people—and leading means waging political warfare against the "centralizers" at Ottawa.

The fact that the federal government is Liberal is a coincidence that Lesage cannot accept as a deterrent: if anything, he must be tougher to prove to Quebecers that he is not Pearson's tool. He would risk defeat in the next election if he appeared to put national interests ahead of provincial interests. He would also risk a split in his cabinet, and it is not at all certain that he would win in a power struggle with his more nationalistic resources minister, Rene Levesque.

So Lesage demands that Ottawa double its tax revenue concessions to the provinces, and inveighs against Pearson's plans to set up a contributory pension scheme and a municipal loan fund by act of Parliament. He wants greater provincial revenues without increasing the tax burden on his people, betting that the politically weak minority government will pay in advance for his support next election. And constitutionally he does have an arguable case that the pension and loan plans encroach on areas of provincial jurisdiction. I don't think he could make it stick in the Supreme Court, but their Lordships are not his judges—the voters of Quebec are.

Lesage has a somewhat de Gaulleist attitude that shows the influence of Levesque, who is perhaps the most powerful man in Quebec today because he does what he wants, and Lesage does what he wants.

Between them they have given Pearson gratuitous provocation, but without evoking reaction in kind.

It takes two to make a fight, and 30 years as a diplomat taught Pearson there is little permanent advantage to be gained by sharp retorts in situations where any solutions must be reached by negotiation. But Pearson won't be stampeded: he says he'll press on as scheduled, but he has called a conference with the provinces for next week, to try to resolve differences. Discussion of other mutual problems, such as revenues, likely will be left for a full dress federal-provincial conference in the fall.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

By DICK WEST

A Hat-to-Hat Talk

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One of the truly marvelous developments of our times has been the growing ability of the average layman to indulge in the practice of psychiatry.

A person would be a fool to spend money for consultations with a professional psychiatrist when he can get essentially the same service entirely gratis from the editor of a fashion magazine.

So if you are a man in the 45-50 age bracket, and if you don't like to wear a hat, stop worrying about it. It's not your fault.

A Freudian explanation for your behavior was set forth in London this week by John Taylor, editor of a fashion and psychotherapeutic periodical called Taylor and Cutter.

Taylor observed that when President Kennedy was travelling about Great Britain, he held his hat in his hand. He concluded from this that the U.S. chief executive did not like to wear a hat.

As it happens, he was right, although he might just as logically have assumed that the president was hoping someone would put something in the hat—like maybe the head of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Anyway, Taylor advanced the theory that President Kennedy and other men of his age group instinctively reject head coverings because of a childhood influence upon their lids.

As kids, he explained, they saw their fathers wearing hats. Thus hats became associated in their subconscious with middle-age. And middle-age is something they would like to avoid, if possible.

What Taylor seemed to be saying is that bareheadedness is a part of the familiar father-hostility complex. I can't tell you how relieved I was when I read his hypothesis.

I had been under the illusion that I didn't like to wear hats because they made my hair sweat.

I am grateful to Taylor for clearing that up and for putting the blame for my hatlessness where it properly belongs—on my father.

I don't suppose my old man was aware that he was disturbing my psyche when he wore a hat in my presence, but that does not exclude him from the responsibility for my present condition.

Now that we all understand the origin of fedoraphobia—now that the subject has, so to speak, been dragged from the dark recesses of our subconscious into the fresh open air—it behooves us to do something about it.

First we should call in our own sons and have a hat-to-hat talk with them, making sure they don't grow up with the same mental quirk that our fathers inflicted upon us.

Then we should write our congressmen demanding a government-financed research program to answer the following questions: if hats don't cause middle-age, what does?

Kurdish Rebels Ready to Hit Rich Oil Fields

Iraqi authorities have refused foreign newspapermen permission to visit embattled areas of Kurdish-occupied northern Iraq. But AP correspondent Alex Efty, disguised as a Kurd, reached Kurdish rebel headquarters after nights of travelling on horseback and on foot over mountain trails. During the day he hid to avoid detection.

In the following dispatch, which took more than a week to get out, Efty reports on the fighting and on his interview with the No. 2 Kurdish leader.

By ALEX EFTY
SULEIMANIYA, Iraq (AP)—After a month of renewed fighting, Kurdish rebels claim they are holding the Iraqi army at bay and confining it to main cities in northern Iraq.

But the No. 2 Kurdish leader warned that the rebels may attack Western oil installations in northern Iraq—the financial ministry of the government—to cripple the Iraqi offensive. The rebels called a cease-fire in their 18-month-long war for autonomy after Iraq's Ba'ath Socialist party overthrew Premier Abdel Karim Kassem in February. The new government also rejected their demands for an autonomous Kurdistan, and a month ago the Baghdad government ordered an all-out war on the Kurds.

Despite almost daily claims of success from Baghdad, General Secretary Ibrahim Ahmed of the Kurdish Democratic party says the government troops are pinned down in the cities of Mosul, Erbil, Kirkuk, and Suleimaniya and a few isolated country garrisons.

Communication between government units is possible only where tanks can support convoys. The rebels otherwise control the roads linking the cities. Where the tanks cannot go—and this means most of Kurdistan—the rebels hold firm control.

HASN'T BEEN DEFEATED
"In this first month since the resumption of operations against us," Ahmed said, "the rebel army has not suffered a single military defeat."

He spoke in his headquarters, a large cave safe from air attacks, only a few miles from the provincial capital of Suleimaniya. A 49-year-old lawyer-journalist, he ranks second in the Kurdish movement to Moscow-trained Mullah Mustafa Barzani.

As Ahmed talked, a walkie-talkie and Morse radio equipment near him crackled constantly with messages between rebel control posts.

Ahmed ridiculed government victory claims. He said:

"Our casualties, in the course of numerous successful attacks against government forces, are a maximum of 25 dead. In the same period we inflicted more than 200 fatalities on the army, the police and the national guard and captured 150 prisoners, 500 rifles and 50,000 rounds of ammunition."

NEEDS TANK GUNS
"If we had some anti-tank guns to move out of the mountains, it would be the end of the Ba'ath party in Iraq."

Ahmed accused the Iraqi army of turning its wrath on defenseless civilians to make up for its inability to come to grips with rebel forces. He claimed more than 100 villagers were killed in the Brayi district, more than 200 were reported killed in Kirkuk and Suleimaniya, and some 3,000 Kurdish town dwellers have been rounded up as hostages.

"If the situation continues as it is, we will be forced to act against the oil installations to deprive the government of its most important source of revenue, which enables it to maintain an army and keep it supplied," Ahmed said.

The British-operated Iraq Petroleum Company is jointly owned by American, British, French and Dutch interests. It provides 90 per cent of Iraq's foreign exchange. A large number of foreigners are employed in its fields near Kirkuk in the Kurdish area. The Kurds have warned foreigners to leave.

MARYLAND RACE TROUBLES

Small Hope for Respite Despite Peace Moves

Times News Services
CAMBRIDGE, Md.—This militia-controlled city of 12,000 saw no prospect for a respite in its racial troubles today despite two peace moves:

1. National Guard leaders headed off a protest march by 500 angry Negroes Monday night by releasing 14, including militant integrationist Gloria Richardson, who had been arrested for trying to picket a drugstore.

2. Mayor Calvin W. Mowbray and the city council appointed a human relations committee to help tackle racial problems. The committee is composed of seven white persons and four Negroes. The Negroes were nominated by the Cambridge Non-Violent Action Committee.

But Mrs. Richardson called for a new demonstration today. Elsewhere on the U.S. racial scene demonstrations in various cities were peaceful while Negro leaders planned their next moves.

In Baltimore, Negro leaders said demonstrations probably resume this weekend at Gwynn Oak amusement park, where mass arrests were made earlier this month.

Management rejected a proposal to admit Negroes July 26 and accepted an alternate proposal to desegregate next spring, but Negro leaders turned this down.

Demonstrators in Brooklyn, N.Y., demanded that Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller halt work on a construction project, claiming that hiring practices discriminate against Negroes.

ARREST 42
Forty-two demonstrators, including 17 clergymen, were arrested.

Civil rights hearings continued in Washington, where Governor George Wallace of Alabama charged that the Kennedy administration has brought the U.S. to "the brink of civil warfare" by its handling of racial problems.

Wallace said the president has been pressured into approving mob violence and street rioting in behalf of his civil rights program.

The Washington Post said a dozen members of the Black Muslim sect have been dropped from government jobs by the Civil Service Commission.

The newspaper said the action was taken because the Muslims declared their first loyalty was to the state of Islam, rather than the United States.

At Jackson, Miss., the state won permission to seek a mental examination for Byron de La Beuchwith, 42, a Greenwood, Miss., fertilizer salesman charged with the ambush murder of Negro leader Medgar Evers.

Cold Record Set

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP)—The U.S. Antarctic expedition's South Pole station recorded a low temperature of 109.8 degrees below zero just before midnight Sunday night. The previous record for the South Pole was 109.5 degrees below zero recorded Sept. 13, 1959.

Private shipyards were recently awarded contracts for seven more submarines, and Scott said he understood the torpedo tube contracts may go to Canadian companies also.

Scott said "our grave economic problems—unemployment, the balance of payment deficit, and declining industries vital to our defence—require a change of policy."

Senator Wants Halt To Defence Imports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.) urged President Kennedy Monday to rescind a defence department waiver of the Buy American Act for Canadian suppliers.

Under the law, a contract cannot be awarded to a foreign firm unless its bid is more than six per cent below an American firm's bid.

Scott said waiver of the act for Canada has already hurt American firms in areas of substantial unemployment.

The Youngstown Welding and Engineering Company, Scott said, had produced torpedo tubes for both the navy and private shipyards for the last several years.

Last year, however, the defence department, in awarding submarine contracts, permitted the shipyards to order three sets of torpedo tubes from a Canadian firm, Scott said.

This, the senator added, resulted in a layoff of half the Youngstown firm's employees and injury to Pennsylvania subcontractors.

Private shipyards were recently awarded contracts for seven more submarines, and Scott said he understood the torpedo tube contracts may go to Canadian companies also.

Scott said "our grave economic problems—unemployment, the balance of payment deficit, and declining industries vital to our defence—require a change of policy."

Durable Perennials

On summer days when gale force winds send the seagulls winging landward for shelter, gardeners face the battering to see how the plants are behaving.

While the pessimist sees only the damage the optimist makes note of those which maintain their stand, only their heads swaying gently in the wind.

They remind me of the Empire State giant of New York whose head also swayed gently but noticeably when the Atlantic gales blew.

Among the perennials now in full glory are several which never require staking, and it is during these summer gales that we take particular stock of their durability.

The short varieties of liatris, known by a host of common names in different parts—Button-root, Gayfeather, Snake-root and Blazing-star—are a few—always attract attention by their soft rosy-purple spikes of tightly packed flowers, and their general appearance of sturdiness.

They are unusual, too, in their peculiar habit of opening their flowers from the top of the spike downward. Fifteen to 18 inches high is the maximum for the short varieties.

A perennial which goes well with liatris, and stands up to wind is the summer helenium variously listed as Hoopeel and Wyndley Gold. A clear, rich golden yellow, the daisy flowers come on stems up to 15 inches in height.

Months of bloom—from early June well into September—can be encouraged if the old flowers are cut just above the next lower flower bud.

A third plant which has stood up well in the weekend gales has a brilliant pink malow-type flowers arranged in spikes. Its name is Sidalcea (no common name known) variety Sussex Beauty, and in ordinary garden soil goes up to three or four feet with numerous side branches and flowering shoots.

Though we cringe at broken plants of chrysanthemums, lost heads from the tuberous begonias, and toppled stems of delphiniums and gladioli there are many colorful summer plants to delight us year after year—regardless of high summer winds.

A perennial which goes well with liatris, and stands up to wind is the summer helenium variously listed as Hoopeel and Wyndley Gold. A clear, rich golden yellow, the daisy flow-

AGED FOR EXTRA DRYNESS

DEFECTIVE GENES TO BE ELIMINATED?

NEW YORK (AP)—Basil O'Connor, president of the U.S. National Foundation-March of Dimes for polio research, predicted to 1,200 scientists and physicians Monday that new biological facts they may uncover would expose them to public scorn.

O'Connor told the opening session of the five-day second International Conference on Congenital Malformations that new discoveries in the life sciences might be met by a public unwilling to accept change. But he advised the scientists to persist in their efforts.

O'Connor told the gathering that studies in molecular biology and chemical genetics "may show us ways to erase defective genes from heritage."

Some Kick It Away; Pele Boots His Way to Millions

By EDGAR MILLER

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Some men kick money away but Edson Arantes de Nascimento is booting his way to millions at 22.

This trimly built Negro is one of Brazil's richest young men. His yearly income is reported to be around $150,000.

Edson is Pele (pronounced peh-lee). Brazil's king of soccer. His magic toe has skyrocketed him to international fame and fortune the last five years.

Although few people in Brazil know his full name, his playing name Pele is a household word. And in soccer-playing countries abroad the word Pele has become almost as synonymous with Brazil as coffee or samba.

Brazilians frequently say: "The only thing that would ever cause a revolution in Brazil would be the sale of Pele to another country."

Indeed, Pele is considered so untouchable that foreign clubs don't even bother to make offers for his contract, despite frequent newspaper reports to the contrary.

Modesto Roma, one of the principal owners of Santos, the club that owns this soccer goldmine, says Santos has never received a formal proposition for Pele's contract.

"Foreign clubs are probably afraid ever to suggest that he be sold," says Roma.

What is Pele actually worth? One Brazilian sports writer says he is worth considerably more than his weight in gold. Pele tips the scales at 154 pounds.

The second brightest star in the Brazilian soccer galaxy is Manoel Francisco dos Santos, better known as Garrincha or Mane (Man-eh). His club, Rio's Botafogo, has turned down an offer of $1,200,000 for Garrincha.

PELE
... Brazil's idol

"We wouldn't even consider an offer of less than $2,000,000," says a club official.

If Garrincha, the heir-apparent, is worth $2,000,000, the king himself must be worth much more.

Pele first broke into the international spotlight when he paced Brazil to victory in the 1958 Jules Rimet Cup soccer championships in Sweden. Since then his exploits have become almost legendary.

Fan letters pour in by the hundreds from all over the soccer-playing world.

When the team travels, Pele is mobbed by fans wherever he goes. Many hotels prepare specially decorated suites for him. A sure way to get a good turnout for a game is to advertise that Pele is playing. Most clubs insist on a clause in game contracts with Santos that Pele must play, if only for a few minutes.

But Pele apparently has remained singularly unaffected by his sudden fame. He politely, but firmly, turns down special favors offered him by hotel managers and the like when on road trips and stays in the regular accommodations provided for the other players.

At home, he lives modestly with a teammate who also doubles as Pele's personal secretary and adviser.

It is reported that Pele actually spends less than $100 a month on living expenses.

Pele's salary strictly for playing soccer runs to about $15,000 a year. Commissions from advertising, royalties from an autobiography, a film and his widespread business investments push his income up to the $150,000-a-year mark.

Pele, by his fame and fortune one of Brazil's most eligible young bachelors, dates frequently—but usually with a different girl each time.

Hal Malone LOOKS AT SPORTS

Herb Capozzi is a thinking general manager with a wonderful brain generously covered with greasy kid stuff. Look into his bifocals and you can feel his comptometer eyes perusing, analyzing, sifting. He has a flair for figures which comes from negotiating player contracts, studying gate receipts, checking hotel, laundry and dining room accounts. At 37, the Lions' Mr. Capozzi is the youngest (and probably the shrewdest) football general manager in Canada.

In a pinch he could probably draw up a federal budget as good as Walter Gordon's, his counterpart on the Ottawa Drawbacks.

Like Mr. Gordon, Capozzi occasionally tempts fate and discovers that he is fallible, just like people and sports writers.

"It started," Capozzi was saying last week at the Lions' camp in Courtenay, "when I was driving home one day and saw this sign in a pet shop, 'Chipmunks—$3.25'."

Can't go wrong at that price, he thought. Just what my kids (three) would like. He stopped—"this should take 10 minutes"—and went in.

'They All Knew the One I Wanted'

Chipmunks in various sizes and colors frolicked in a large cage. He spotted one and asked the attendant to fetch it.

Let Capozzi tell it . . .

"By this time an elderly gentleman, two matrons and a young mother with a little girl had entered the shop.

"The attendant took a stick with a net at one end, the kind you use to catch butterflies, and, opening the cage door, swung at my chipmunk. He missed. Chipmunks all over.

"He tried again. 'No,' I said. 'Wrong one. Mine's on the other side.'

"That started it. The old man, the matrons, the mother, even the kid, insisted they knew the chipmunk I wanted—and each picked a different one.

"We argued quite a while. Finally the clerk fished one out. I didn't think it was my original choice but I was anxious to get out of there. I said, 'Thanks—here's your $3.25'."

Clerk: "What about a cage?"

Capozzi: "Can't I keep it in a box?"

Clerk: "Heavens! Now we have a small cage—not much room for the little darling to romp in—for $8.95. But here is the ultimate in cages. Spacious, comfortable, well-designed. Only $12.95."

For a Novice, Herb Was Learning

Capozzi, reaching for his wallet . . . "Fine. If you will wrap it up I'll . . .

Clerk: "Do you have a special water bottle?"

Capozzi: "Uh?"

Clerk: "Allows the water to flow at the proper speed. Only 75 cents."

Capozzi: "Put it in, tie it all together, and how much do I owe . . . ?"

Clerk: "What will you feed the chipmunk?"

Capozzi: "Oh, grass, lettuce . . ."

Clerk: "Never. Chipmunks require special food. It comes in two sizes, small and large . . ."

Capozzi, holding up a hand . . . "The large one, please. And will a cheque be alright? You see . . ."

Clerk: "What do you know about chipmunks?"

Capozzi: "Well, not much. But I'm learning . . ."

Clerk: "You'll need this book. Complete details on care and training, with color illustrations. Absolutely necessary for only a dollar and . . . lessee, that comes to a grand total of $22.15 . . ."

Only the Chipmunk Has It Made

"So I took the whole business home," Capozzi was saying, "and my wife, who is budget-conscious, asks, 'What's that?'"

"A chipmunk, dear. Only $3.25. Loads of fun for the kids."

"What about all that other stuff?" she asks.

"Just a few essentials, dear. Nothing expensive."

"So we put the chipmunk in the cage, gave it food and water and waited for it to perform."

And?

"Well," Capozzi said, "it hadn't done much in the week we had it before I came to Courtenay. Slept all day. Every morning about 5 o'clock, though, there was a lot of noise from the kitchen. Didn't wake me or the kids. Only my wife."

Just think, a man said, if the little fellow gets sick and dies when you're away, you'll have to go through the whole process again.

"Not me," said Capozzi. "Fifty-three football players I can handle. Buses, hotels, ticket sales I can cope with. But imagine!—$22.15 for one chipmunk—and all it does is sleep."

Liston on Cassius

—'Who Is That?'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston worked out the equivalent of 13 rounds of boxing Monday and then joined sportswriters for an interview that was more humorous than serious.

Liston appeared in trim shape and completely relaxed for his title defence next Monday against ex-champion Floyd Patterson. Patterson took the day off and remained in seclusion at his training quarters.

Liston was asked if he was prepared to go a full 15 rounds. Strictly deadpan, Sonny replied, "after five I'm quitting."

WONT GO FIVE

Sonny repeated a similar prediction when he said: "It won't go five rounds. It wouldn't go 15 if I broke both my hands."

Heavyweight contender Cassius Clay is reported to be coming to the fight scene, possibly today. Sonny was asked what he thought of Cassius.

"Who is that?" was the answer.

Liston's manager, Jack Nilon said that he and Liston have made no plans, nor will they decide anything for the future, including a fight with Clay, until the Patterson match is over.

Patterson knocked a 232-pound sparring partner out Sunday with a left hook to the head.

It was the fifth time since he started training here that Patterson had felled a sparring mate. Later, at a press conference, a reporter asked Liston whether he thought Patterson was working harder—and, looking better—than Liston has done in his drills.

Replied Liston: "Don't you think he should?"

Patterson is a 4-to-1 underdog in his bid to regain the heavyweight title. He now weighs 195 to Liston's 215.

HOPES TO VAULT AGAIN

Paralyzed from neck down following trampoline accident July 2, University of Washington pole vaulter Brian Sternberg is shown in hospital. Robert M. Fine, pastor of Free Methodist Church in Seattle stands between youth's parents, Courageous Sternberg, whose previous world record vault of 16 ft. 8 in. was surpassed by John Pennel's 16 ft. 8 1/2 in. Saturday, said: "I've always said the record could go any time. I don't feel bad about it or disappointed as I would if I felt that I had no chance to come back and try again." Doctors say permanent paralysis is probable.

Men Behind the Scenes

DERBY CORNER

Bob McMillan has his own reasons for working overtime on the Handicapped Children's Salmon Derby.

Most important, of course, is that the more he and his friends on the derby committee work, the more handicapped youngsters in the Victoria area will benefit from proceeds of the derby, co-sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Victoria Daily Times.

Bob also believes the more you put into a project like the derby, the more you get out of it.

"If you want to have a successful organization," he says, "you have to work for it."

McMillan has been a member of the VSIAA for only two years, but he's been on the executive of three derby projects, including the big two-day Handicapped Children's event on July 27 and 28.

One of the top anglers at Saanich Inlet, he has taken two button-sized fish this season. But right now he is more interested in derby chores.

And Bob will be pleased to tell you about the event or sell you a derby ticket if you call him at 383-0803.

Nottebart missed by only one final pitch Monday and even though he hurled a no-hitter two months ago, he still has not pitched a shutout in the majors.

"Maybe I'm just not living right," he laughed. "I guess I'll never come closer to pitching a shutout."

Nottebart missed by only one final pitch Monday and even though he hurled a no-hitter two months ago, he still has not pitched a shutout in the majors.

ONE PITCH SHY

Here was the situation:

The Mets had broken a 15-game losing streak with a 14-5 victory over the Colts in the opener of a two-night double-header.

Nottebart zipped through the first 8 1/2 innings of the nightcap and then had two strikes on Jim Hickman with Houston leading 8-0. He suddenly injured his right ankle pushing off the mound and needed help.

"I couldn't throw another pitch," he said.

So Hal Woodeshick came out of the bullpen, made only one pitch—a strike—and it was all over with the Colts on top, 8-0.

Nottebart failed to receive credit for a shutout but he's used to minor disappointments. There was even one connected with his May 17 no-hitter against the Phillies because they scored a run off him although Houston won the game, 4-1.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Phillies ended the Dodgers' seven-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory in 11 innings; Cincinnati defeated Milwaukee, 4-3, in 12 innings; Pittsburgh swept a pair from San Francisco, 2-1 and 4-1, and the Cubs beat the Cardinals, 2-0.

BIG SALMON RUN ...

Victoria Anglers Are Hoping to be getting even better," said one Pedder Bay veteran Monday. "Lots of people are getting limit catches."

"Best in years," said another.

Pinks were also reported in good numbers off South-Pedder Island and there was some activity near James Island.

Oak Bay anglers were out in force Monday night, hoping the main run would have moved to Brothie Ledge or Trial Island, but they only hit an occasional spring and a few coho.

They believe the pinks could show up off Oak Bay within a couple of days, but are also worried that they might swing away from shore toward the American side of the strait before reaching Victoria waters.

"It's still great and it seems

Guess Who Ruined Gary's Big Night?

The odds against a perfect game are better than 1,000 to 1 and you're even higher that you'd never guess who ruined Gary Peters' bid for one.

The villain was rival pitcher Robin Roberts, who has seen a number of his own no-hitters ruined but never before had acted as the spoiler himself.

Peters, a 26-year-old southpaw for Chicago White Sox, struck out 13 batters and did not walk any in beating Baltimore Orioles, 4-0.

Where it not for Roberts, the kind of hitter no pitcher ever really worries about,

Peters would have become the first man ever to hurl a perfect game in regular major league competition since 1922 when Charlie Robertson did so for the White Sox. The only other perfect game since was Don Larsen's World Series masterpiece in 1956.

"No one can ever beat that," Larsen still quips. "The best anyone can ever do is tie it."

RETIRED 19 IN ROW

Peters lost his chance to even tie it when Roberts singled up the middle with two out in the third inning after which the White Sox lefty retired the last 19 batters in order to become only the third southpaw to pitch a complete game against the Orioles this season.

Kansas City A's outlasted first place New York Yankees, 11-10, in 12 innings, Boston Red Sox nipped Los Angeles Angels, 2-1, Minnesota routed Cleveland, 13-1, and Washington drubbed Detroit, 11-6.

Everything happens to Don Nottebart.

First he pitches a no-hitter but it's not actually a no-hit, no-run game.

And then he pitched a fine four-hit shutout for Houston

Colts Monday night, but technically it won't go into the books as a shutout.

"Maybe I'm just not living right," he laughed. "I guess I'll never come closer to pitching a shutout."

Waiting for vacation time . . .

During the holiday season, our golfers are scarier than department store salesmen when you're in a hurry. Ho hum . . . one more week, then it's my turn.

Dick Munn has an ambitious holiday trip planned. The 20-year-old Cedar Hill professional is making plans to play in the B.C. Open (Point Grey, Aug. 14-18) and the CPGA (Edmonton, Aug. 23-25).

In addition, some of Richard's friends hope to send him on to the McNaughton-Brookes Bursary tournament in Toronto (Aug. 28-29). It's an event for Canadian pros under 30 which guarantees the top three all expenses for a 10-week march on the U.S. Golf Trail.

Dick already has been promised accommodation in Toronto, and now his friends are working on the cost of an airline ticket.

The B.C. PGA also intends to send two Vancouver swing-ers to the Bursary tournament. They'll be picked on the basis of their showing in the B.C. Open.

Bob Rosburg wrapped it up best when he talked about the horrid playing conditions (equal for all) that led to the astronomical scores in the U.S. Open at Brookline:

"When you're a golf pro, it hurts your pride to shoot a 45. They don't put nails on the track at Indianapolis. They don't put rocks on the infield at the World Series."

Returning from a golfing vacation to Monterey, Calif., southpaw Milt Dow of Colwood was impressed with everything about the National Association of Left-Handed Golfers' annual tournament—except the weather.

Milton didn't wish to offend California's Chamber of Commerce, so he tried hard to stick to the subject of golf. Included in Milt's conversation was a sentence that suggested that the 1966 NALG event can be Victoria's—for the asking.

It would be a "first" for Canada.

"The National executive committee was quite receptive to the idea of holding their tournament up here," says Dow, who seems to be the only Victorian with NALG affiliation. There's a great deal of work to be done before a bid is tendered, says Dow. The main thing, as he sees it, is the unification of Vancouver Island's left-handers.

With an organizational meeting in mind, Milt wants to hear from all southpaws.

Ten juniors, two from each district course, are attending the B.C. Professional Golf Association's clinic at Chilliwack this week.

Cost of the week-long clinic is $75 but each boy has received $25 as a result of proceeds taken from the recent challenge match between B.C. amateur champ Bill Wakeham and Vancouver pro Lyle Crawford.

The ten are Gary Smith and Len Holyoak of Uplands; Rick Kent and Don McKay of Colwood; Noel Pumfrey and Cee Ferguson of Gorge Vale; Jay Wilson and Graham Sommer of Victoria, and Greg Barnes and Mike Graas of Cedar Hill.

Kelowna Golf Club has been selected as the site of the 1964 B.C. Amateur tournament, making it the first time in almost 70 years the annual tournament has been awarded to a club outside the Victoria and Vancouver areas. Considerably altered while being switched from a nine-hole in the past three years, the course now measures 6,205 yards with a par of 72 . . . Mount Brenton course will stage its second annual junior invitational tournament on Aug. 17 with the same sponsor. Juniors may submit entries through their own clubs. The highly-successful event last year was won by Ricky Kent . . . Beryl Paterson won the women's handicap title at Gorge Vale Sunday, beating Eva Cann, 4 and 3.

Mommys Kid returned $65.20, $18.20 and $7.30 on a $2 bet.

Nicholson Takes Aggregate Crown

Ed Nicholson of Dockyard Rifle Association captured the grand aggregate crown Sunday in the Victoria and District Rifle Association's annual shoot at Heals Range.

Nicholson was awarded the aggregate trophy for his score of 365 out of 375, three points better than Maj. A. M. T. Spittal of Canadian Scottish Rifle Association.

Cpl. Bob Walker of RCMP took third, with 354.

Spittal captured the president's match at 300 yards with a score of 73x75. Fran Morse picked up second place with 72 points.

Ray McDougall was high tyro with 70, and Phil Watt was high cadet with 64.

In competition for the new F. W. Francis trophy—20 shots at 900 yards—Spittal and Nicholson tied at 90x100, making a shoot-off necessary.

Spittal scored 22 to Nicholson's 20 to take the trophy.

Top tyro was John Dolman with 87.

Saturday, Nicholson won the RCN match with a score of 204x225. The competition was over 200, 300, 500 and 600 yards.

Stamps Flatten Ottawa; Argos, Als Cry Blues

(By the Canadian Press)

The Canadian Football League's pre-season exhibition schedule opened Monday night and although only one game was played, three teams were crying the blues.

Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference humbled Ottawa-Rough Riders—24-7—before 12,806 rain-soaked fans at Ottawa and the inept Riders heard boos from their home fans in the third quarter.

Two of Ottawa's Eastern Conference cousins, Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts, were unhappy with reports from their respective infirmaries.

The Als, who open the exhibition season against Calgary Wednesday night at Montreal, will be without halfback George Dixon, leading scorer last season in the East.

Dixon bruised his ribs last Thursday in an intra-squad game and, believe it or not, was further injured by pats on the back by well-wishing fans.

The Argos open at home Wednesday against British Columbia Lions and there is a possibility Jackie Parker will watch from the sidelines. The Argos' new quarterback strained a knee and ankle last Wednesday, also in an intra-squad game.

Parker, though, wants to play. Coach Nobby Wirkowski says he'll wait until just a few hours before game time to decide.

Halfback Jim Dillard scored two touchdowns for Calgary, one on a brilliant 84-yard runback of a kickoff. Quarterback Jerry Keeling scored the other one on a one-yard keeper play and Larry Robinson kicked all three converts and added a 17-yard field goal.

Rookie quarterback Tommy Lee tossed a 25-yard pass to flanker Whit Tucker in the end zone for Ottawa's last-quarter touchdown.

The Stamps led 14-0 at half-time and once held a 17-0 lead.

Lions Add Brancato, Cut Nine Men

Other football notes: peg still has five veterans unsigned including Gerry James and Nick Miller who have not yet attended a training session.

Toronto—The Argos added three new players—ends Al Schau from Western Michigan University and Kevin Ward from the University of Wyoming and lineman Nate Borden who was with Buffalo Bills of the American League last season. Borden also saw action with Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys before joining the Bills.

Ottawa—George Brancato, 30, defensive end, was placed on waivers Monday by the Rough Riders and almost immediately claimed by B.C. Lions. He had played at Ottawa the last eight seasons.

Vancouver—The Lions cut Canadian linebacker Jim Randall and released eight juniors to pare their squad to 45 players.

Winnipeg—Canadian two-way halfback Ron Latourelle signed with the champion Blue Bombers for his ninth season. Winni-

Canada Council Boosts Igloo Art

OTTAWA (CP)—A young Toronto artist will set out next winter on an Arctic journey, racing against time to encourage the production of Eskimo drawings before the impact of southern civilization alters the native art.

Terence Ryan, secretary to the Eskimo co-operative at Cape Dorset on the southwest corner of Baffin Island, will make the mid-winter trip by plane and dog sled across the vast reaches of North Baffin Island.

He will travel to remote camps asking Eskimos to put down on paper their view of life and their nomadic life, and then revisit the camps to collect the drawings.

His undertaking is one of six projects relating to native art and literature for which the Canada Council has approved grants totalling more than $18,000.

This is the council's first direct contribution to Eskimo art—an enterprise which has become the largest single money-earner in the Far North.

Other projects receiving aid include a program to have Eskimo children draw illustrations of their people's mythology, and the production of three books including the translation of an Eskimo hunter's autobiography. Amounts of the individual grants are not made public.

Mr. Ryan is an artist in his early 30s who is following the footsteps of James Houston, who is credited with sparking the development of Eskimo carving and other art.

Mr. Ryan is secretary and art adviser to the Eskimo-operated co-operative at Cape Dorset.

The Canada Council also is assisting a northern affairs department social worker, Robert Gordon Williamson, to complete a book on the background and social development of the Eskimo. He is the founder of the Eskimo language magazine Inuktitut.

As well, the council is helping to finance 50 full-page illustrations by Toronto artist Franklin Arbuckle for a book by Canadian author Selwyn Dewdney on the life of Indians and Eskimos in eight major regions at the time Europeans first arrived.

The council also is making a $2,000 grant to help enlarge the library of the Arctic Institute of North America at McGill University. The library is ranked among the top four polar libraries in the world.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Those few phony, or dishonest, Broadway producers who get money from glamor-struck "Angels," and manage to pocket thousands through tricky bookkeeping and faked, multiple expenses, are to be the subject of an investigation by Atty.-Gen. Louis Lefkowitz. Texas oilbarons have been frequent victims. This probe of shows that never opened here—or didn't pay off—could rock the town. It wouldn't involve the big producers; the targets would mostly be producers who have never produced.

One of Carol Lawrence's two dancing partners broke his leg in rehearsal in Pittsburgh. She had to open her great new act with just one partner... The British Upper Classes' interest in girls gets lots of kidding now in "Beyond the Fringe." One line is, "Well, at least, it's a start in the right direction."

MIDNIGHT EARL
Frank Sinatra Jr.'s opening at the Atlantic City 500 brought out the loyal crowd from New York... Finally, those UN gals will be done in the movies. Galt Galtier wrote "The Girl in the Blue Suit," about an interpreter

GINA... wants to be alone who fell in love with an Arab delegate... Rudy Vallee says he's suing his book publisher. Bardot's ex, producer Roger Vadim, ran out of dough while filming the Francoise Sagan story, "Castle in Sweden"; he needs $250,000 more... The white-haired cat digging Gene Krupa's drumming at the Metropolitan was Leopold Stokowski... The Pat Boones'll go yacht-shopping when he returns from movie-making in Ireland... Mrs. Bing Crosby gets her private pilot's licence soon... Gina Lollobrigida bought a huge Paris apartment with one entrance—by elevator... Pianist Erroll Garner included "Misty" in his new album "because the composer asked me and I couldn't refuse him." (He's the composer)... Sammy Davis Jr. will produce a movie in London in the afternoons while he's playing the "Golden Boy" musical at night.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: A youngster told his mother, "I hate my new nurse—I'd like to grab her and bite her on the neck, like Daddy does."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: You think you have expenses? How'd you like to have to buy coloring books for the Kennedy kids?

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "If you want to write something that has a chance of living on forever, sign a mortgage." Franklin (La.) Banner-Tribune.

EARL'S PEARLS: Nowadays being prosperous merely means your credit's good enough to borrow money. That's earl, brother.

PET POINTS

By Dr. J. R. Emas

Do Dogs Have Blood Types?

Yes. At least seven different blood groupings have been established.

Clinic: Q. "I have seen ads for a new pill for dogs that supposedly 'works from the inside' to kill fleas, lice and even ticks. Are these pills safe and do they work?"

Mrs. G.R.R., Toledo, Ohio.
A. In my opinion, these pills should not be given without the advice of your veterinarian. He should be consulted as to his recommendation, the proper dosage for your particular breed and the physical condition of your dog.

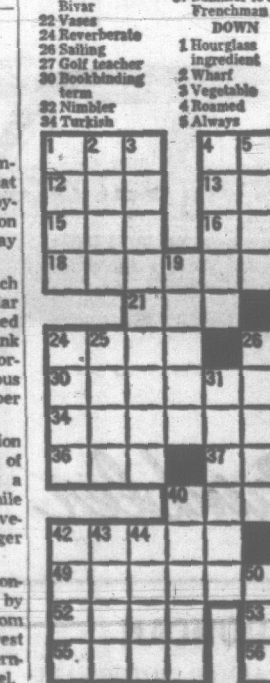

Clinic: Q. "Can you tell me what 'Rabbit Fever' is and if humans can get it?"
J. O. McC., Fort Smith, Ark.
A. "Rabbit Fever" or Tularemia, is found in a wide range of small animals—squirrels, opossums, rabbits, field mice and so on. It is transmissible to man and brings on fever, aches, pain and over-all weakness. Man usually contracts Tularemia when skinning or cleaning infected animals. When skinning and cleaning game, it is advisable to wear rubber gloves and to scrub thoroughly with soap, water and a good disinfectant afterward.

Clinic: Q. "Can you tell me how many schools of veterinary medicine there are in North America?"

K.J.L., Hialeah, Fla.
A. There are two in Canada and 18 in the United States. Incidentally, 100 years ago, when the American Veterinary Medical Association was formed, there was only one—a private college which has since ceased operation.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES
Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.
Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.
The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.
Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Debbie Johnson, nine, Exeter, Calif., for her question:

Where do clouds go after the rain?
Maybe you are a weather watcher. Then you know that the clouds are full of surprises. They change their shapes. They change color. A pearly grey sky may rain for days. A threatening dark cloud may refuse to rain at all. Sometimes the clouds disappear after a shower, and sometimes they hover overhead long after the rain has finished falling.
The falling rain is part of a weather story. It is a fascinating story, even though the characters are not people. There is an elevator run by a mighty motor. There are oceans of water and oceans of air and countless flying carpets of all shapes, sizes and colors. The story of rain happens over and over again, and no one knows where it begins or ends.
The sun is a mighty motor which draws up moisture from the face of the watery earth. The moisture evaporates and becomes vapor. This water vapor is a gas which mingles with the other invisible gases of the air. We cannot see it, but it is there. Some of the vapor rises one mile, two miles—maybe six miles above our heads.
Up there the air is cooler. This may cause the vapor to change back into liquid water. It becomes misty droplets of water floating in the air, and a cloud is born. It is a flying carpet blown by the breezes far around the world.
But as it goes, the fine-fine droplets in the cloud get together and form bigger droplets, and the cloud becomes heavier. Slowly, slowly it sinks toward the earth. At last its drops of moisture grow too big to float aloft in the air, and down falls the rain. Most of the misty moisture in the cloud turned to water and tumbled down to the earth again.
The cloud was made from moisture which came from the earth. When it lost its moisture, you would expect the cloud to disappear. Sometimes it does. Maybe a thin scarf of cloud is left. If the air is warm, the misty droplets in the straggly cloud may change back again into vapor. Most of the cloud fell down as raindrops. The rest changed into invisible gas. This is why the clouds often disappear, and we get blue skies after a shower.
Some of the rain sinks into the ground where it feeds the plants. Some is added to the oceans and rivers. Day by day, the warm sun dries up tons of moisture, changing it into vapor. The vapor becomes clouds—and then falls down again as rain. The story of rain and clouds is repeated again and again. Since it has no end and no beginning, we call it a cycle. It is the never-ending water cycle which keeps the thirsty earth refreshed.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Nancy Reinhart, age 12, of Seattle, Wash., for her question:
What is the original country of the flamingo?
Not so long ago, there were flocks of wild flamingos along the swampy shores of Florida. But the handsome birds were plundered for their feathers, and our wild flamingos disappeared. Later, foreign flamingos were imported and left to live in a semi-wild state.
The gaudy flamingo is a water bird of the tropics. There are six species varying in color from pale pink to rich rose red. The big beauties live in the wild state in Asia and Africa, in Central and South America, in the West Indies and one species lives high in the Andes.

Anti-War Musical Draws Praise of U.K. Critics

By CAROL KENNEDY
LONDON (CP)—Oh What a Lovely War, the smash-hit musical about the First World War that has captivated London critics, has moved up to the West End from its original East End theatre and appears to be guaranteed capacity houses for a long time to come.

Canadian playwright Ted Alan has a lawsuit pending over the musical. He claims that Theatre Workshop producer Joan Littlewood originally commissioned him to write a similar entertainment and has used his theme and title without attribution.

Choir Boys To Rout Mutineers

A gang of bloodthirsty mutineers will give way to 58 choir boys—"almost angels"—in a Victoria theatre July 23 and 24.

The choir boys are the Little Singers of the Wooden Cross, who will give three concerts in the Royal Theatre.

And the mutineers are in Mutiny on the Bounty, a movie whose removal for those two days required the agreement of both Famous Players and MGM—and the agreement took some getting.

Two local men who are handling the promotion, Earl Aune and Max Chagnon, won't say just how they managed to persuade the companies to relax the 30-day contract for the Bounty film, but it was done.

What the mutineers gave way to is a 32-year-old Roman Catholic choir based at Granby, Que., and now operating out of Montreal.

It has almost 2,000 members, ranging in age from eight to 18, but they don't often sing all together.

Their concerts are usually small ones, put on by small touring groups like the one to perform here.

The description "almost angels" was applied to them in the movie of that name in which they starred. It visited Victoria about a month ago.

There will be evening performances both nights of the engagement, and an afternoon concert July 24.

Tickets are available through some Roman Catholic parishes and through Eaton's box office.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The bridge pairings of Charles Cleworth and Harry Parry and Madge Meachem and Guy Dickson tied Saturday for first place in the weekly tournament sponsored by Victoria Unit, American Contract Bridge League.

Other winners were Les Stewart and Les Isaacson, third; Joan Smith and Jim Duprau, fourth; and Phil Hagel and Paul Smith, fifth.

Wearing Dickensian costumes, members of the Victoria branch, Dickens Fellowship, served tea and refreshments at the branch's annual garden party at 565 Marfield Saturday.

The tables were decorated with Charles Dickens' favorite flower, the scarlet geranium. Home-grown raspberries were supplied by Miss Olive Wetherston.

James Morton, 93, one-time assistant to Premier John Oliver, was guest of honor. A reading from Oliver Twist was given by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Maunsell and a quiz was arranged by Miss J. M. Card.

The yield from Saanich loganberry crop is exceptionally good this year due to ample rainfall in the past two weeks, an official of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association said today.

The yield is expected to be in the neighborhood of 600 tons. Picking started about two weeks ago. It is expected to reach its peak this week.

Arthur Mayse

Like most fishermen who got into the game as soon as their chubby little hands were capable of cranking a reel, I incline to take it for granted that everyone knows how to choose, put together and employ a salmon outfit.

That this isn't so has been impressed on me with startling frequency since school let out and the family vacation season began. I'm now aware that right here in a city practically besieged by the world's finest sport-fish are people who'd like to try their luck, but don't know one end of a rod from another.

Any good tackle salesman into whose territory these wander will send them away well-equipped and instructed. Not all clerks are knowledgeable, though, even in this fisherman's town. More than once, I'd stood by itching to butt in while a would-be angler was lumbered up with ill-assorted gear.

So today, I suggest we take $20 and go choose a rig-out which I guarantee will catch salmon in most of our holiday waters.

Fiberglass makes an unbeatable salmon rod, combining springiness with backbone. For less than $10 of our 20 bucks, we can buy a dandy. The one I've chosen is just under seven feet long. It's made in two sections, connected by a ferrule. The butt, tipped with a rubber knob so it won't bruise when you dig it into your stomach for extra leverage when playing a lunker, is of hardwood, with a metal "seat" to which the reel is secured by a screw fitting.

The tip, a tapered section of translucent green fiberglass is fitted with rings or guides through which you thread the line. The last ring is the tip-top; when rigging in haste, I usually manage to miss it.

This rod has cost us a shade under $9. You might smash it with an axe, or by slamming a car door on it, but no salmon ever will.

We can spend a small fortune on a reel, called a winch in the Walton's time. But by-passing the fancy star drags and such, here for less than $4 is a black bakelite number made in Australia. It has two handles riveted to the frame, a finger-operated click or check to keep the line from spooling off too freely, and a drag which you can adjust to secure more or less tension as required.

Salmon lines, back when I started fishing, were either of braided or twisted linen known as "cuttyhunk," or a sleazy substance called Japanese gut which was wiry when dry and limp as soaked spaghetti when wet.

We grumbled about these till nylon came along. Then we ditched them in favor of that infinitely worthier synthetic which the salesman is now winching onto your reel over the 30-foot length of cuttyhunk to which he joined it. Purpose of the line "backing" is to cushion the reel spool against the pressure of the compacted nylon.

We've chosen 20-pound test monofilament. That's plenty strong for our needs.

On the end of the nylon goes a rectangular chrome-finished flasher or dodger, designed to attract any fish within sight of its zig-zag gleam.

Secured to the business end of the dodger is an 18-inch length of nylon—a snip off your line will do—and from that will dangle the lure.

At this point, firmly ignoring all other barbed dainties, we are going to insist on two spoons. They are called Torn Macks, and both the little size four-and-a-half of silver and brass in combination have been killing salmon on this coast since Caddy was a seawoman.

We'll toss in a couple of slip sinkers designed to slide down to the flasher when a fish hits; and that's the package. For under $17, tax included, you're equipped.

To use the gear, slow your rented boat to the pace of the others on the fishing grounds, ease spoon and dodger overboard, clip a four-ounce lead about 12 feet back of the dodger, and feed out between 40 and 50 pulls of line.

You're in business, and I hope you will soon be reaching for the gaff or net included in your boat rental. Let me add that your chances of hooking a salmon are as good as mine, even though my tackle kit is so heavy I grunt when I lift it!

Six Islanders Chosen For 4-H Trip To Big Toronto Fair

Vancouver Island teen-agers took the lion's share of top awards during a provincial 4-H conference at New Denver in the Kootenays last week.

It was provincial 4-H Week, and 84 members of participating clubs competed at New Denver for gold watches and a trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto in November.

FIVE FROM SAANICH

Of the 14 chosen, six were from Vancouver Island, five of these from Saanich.

But the biggest prize went to 18-year-old John Stanlake, who has just completed Grade 13 at Claremont Senior Secondary School.

He was winner of the coveted $700 Canadian National Exhibition scholarship, which he will use at UBC, where he will begin studying for a degree in agriculture next term.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken E. Stanlake, 7012 East Saanich, he will be presented the scholarship at the CNE in Toronto next month.

New Band Sits To Oom Pah Pah In September

Victoria's first adult brass and reed band will be formed this September.

Although a military band, it will be comprised solely of civilians.

And it will not march; it will sit.

The band will be part of next year's Adult Education program run by the Greater Victoria School Board.

It will be whipped together by Reginald F. Read, for 35 years an oboe instructor at the RCN school of music at HMCS Naden.

"For the first time students who have been members of school brass bands will have an opportunity to join a band, on graduation," Mr. Read said.

Individual instruction will not be given, and musicians are expected to have their own instruments.

Classes will be held at Lansdowne Junior High School on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Trollermen Decide Tonight

The president of B.C. trollerman's organization protested today that these men have never been allowed to take part in a strike vote such as the one leading to a tie-up of the coast fishery Saturday.

Dick Williams, of Pacific Trollers' Association, speaks on behalf of 3,000 trollerman on the coast—150 of them in the Victoria-Sidney-Sooke area—who are idled by a strike of salmon net fishermen against B.C. Fisheries Association.

Salmon net men voted by 81.7 per cent in favor of striking for higher prices, plus welfare improvements. The companies want to maintain two 1962 price levels and reduce two others.

First clinic will be held Thursday at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, between 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Another clinic will be held Friday in the annex at the rear of the nurses' residence at Jubilee Hospital. Times are 1 to 4:30 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

"Trollermen are the last independent of the industry," Mr. Williams said. "They have never been given a vote in these strikes—even those who are in the union."

"To my mind, these votes are to cover the industry. If we are going to have a government-supervised vote in any industry, then everyone in the industry should have a vote."

What will happen is up to the membership, but "everyone is hot under the collar," he said, doubting that the association would agree to tie up.

Trollermen, meanwhile, will meet tonight in ports all along the coast to decide whether they will stay out of action for an indeterminate period while the net men strike, or continue to fish and dispose of their catches in the U.S. market.

They have agreed not to violate the strike on the Canadian side by landing catches domestically.

NO SCABBING
American fishermen's unions do not recognize the UFAWU and affiliated Native Brotherhood, so there is no question of "scabbing."

Trollermen claim they are in the midst of their best season, while net fishermen have two weeks to go before reaching their peak season. This could mean a loss of $2,000 for the average trollerman if the strike continued for two weeks.

Mr. Williams said.

Trustees Come Out For Supps

Greater Victoria School Board Monday night endorsed a resolution calling for reinstatement of supplemental examinations for Grade 12 students.

The resolution was submitted by the V.I. branch of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

The trustees gave these reasons for the request:
Some employers will not hire persons without junior matriculation;

Students going to vocational schools, particularly nursing schools, must have university entrance;

Expenses involved for a student to repeat a year, possibly for failing one subject.

POOR RESULTS
John Gough, district superintendent of schools, pointed out the University of British Columbia has had poor results from students who gained entrance after passing supplemental exams.

He said supplementals were "a method of keeping the gates closed to the hordes."

But George Curran, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, said students should receive the second chance given to adults who attend evening classes.

The resolution named nine institutions of higher learning in Alberta, Washington, Oregon and B.C. which would admit a student who gained his junior matriculation by writing supplemental examinations.

He received injuries to the head, face and knee. No report was available on his condition.

The car failed to make a turn near the Lookout just north of the Malahat summit, crashed through a guard rail, plunged down a boulder-strewn hillside, landing against a tree some 75 feet downhill, at about 11 a.m.

NO WITNESSES
There were no witnesses nor anything to indicate the cause of the accident, although the condition of the smashed guard rail indicated high speed.

There were no tire burns on the highway.

Two wrecking trucks were trying with little success to retrieve the car at press time. The roof was completely flattened as the car came to rest upside down.

The driver was alone in the vehicle. He was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Telescopic Pen Makes Ideal Small Gift for Traveller

By PENNY SAVER

It's probably small gift season all the year round, but I notice it more during the summer when people are going off on holidays. Finding presents or mementos that they can take with them and that will be useful is problem enough—but finding ones that don't take too much money from your own vacation board is even harder!

Perfect for the feminine traveller on your gift list is a telescopic pen that is about two inches long when not in use. When top is taken off, it springs out to double its length.

It comes in pink, aqua, red, black or blue in a plastic case that is gaily patterned in appropriate colors.

Besides all the color, the perfumed ink make these pens very suitable gifts for women (unless you are a man who enjoys imaginative scents emanating from your little black address book!)

Refills are available, too, so that it is a lasting gift. And the price is just $1.25.

A coin caddy is another gift that women will like. It is a little gold-colored box that has circular plastic dividers inside, shaped to hold quarters, dimes and nickels. In top of lid is a clip that holds bills (the spending kind).

It's a good present for the lady who carries an evening bag and wants some "mad money" with her, as the change can't lump into one spot. Box is about the size of a compact. Again the price is $1.25.

If the summer traveller happens to be a visitor from elsewhere, send him home with a 1964 calendar that bears pictures done by Victoria's Edward Goodall of scenes in British Columbia and Alberta. Price is $1.25. Who knows, you might become a tourist promoter by giving them this year-round reminder of the places they visited.

Call Penny at 382-3131 if you'd like to know where I shopped for these items.

Pregnancy Possible in the 70's

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—A woman taking oral birth control pills for a long time might possibly be able to become pregnant in her 60s or 70s, a doctor told the British Medical Association annual meeting Friday.

Dr. L. Kopelowitz said: "We are assured from time to time that these pills are safe and harmless."

"Now evidence has recently been brought before us that they only delay ovulation and there is a possibility that a woman in her 60s or 70s might become pregnant after taking these drugs over a period of years."

"Previously that has only occurred in the Bible," Dr. Kopelowitz was speaking.

En Route Overseas

Dr. and Mrs. W. E. M. Mitchell spent a short time in San Francisco last week and signed the register at British Columbia House. They are en route overseas via the Panama Canal aboard the Loch Garth, and will visit England, Luxembourg and Italy before returning to Victoria. While they are away Dr. Frank Gouws is occupying their home and taking Dr. Mitchell's practice. Others who signed the register at B.C. House in San Francisco last week were Mrs. Mura Robbins, Miss Bonita Robbins, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dennison and daughters.

Italy Says 'It Must Be Skinny'

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI)—The elegant woman of 1967 is as skinny as a toothpick.

This straight and uncompromising line was set Monday as the Italian fall-winter fashion shows went into their second day in Florence. Designers Fourquet, Alincetti, Veneziani and Valentino displayed their fashions.

The fashion shape emerging from the Italian collections was an extra slim profile. The narrow, high-bosomed tube was the basic theme on which the designers played their variations.

The four days of high fashion collections opening Monday were preceded by a one-day round-up of boutique and casual clothes.

Princess Irene Galitzine Sunday night presented some spectacular outfits for tea on top of Mount Everest or a hunt for the Abominable Snowman.

She teamed an igloo-sized jacket of alternating bands of black and white fox with white ski pants and a long white sweater banded in black over the hip. A big white fox hat with a black stripe running down the middle topped it off.

Fur boxing gloves doubled as mittens. Galitzine also provided fur boots to defy the coldest climate.

For indoor sports Galitzine presented her favorite silk crepe lung tunic and skinny pants. She showed them in colors like ice pink, peach, emerald or gold.

The pea jacket seemed to be a Florence favorite for skiing. Marucelli showed it in bottle green knit while Antonelli did it in black velvet.

Veneziani sent a bevy of models down the runway in easy-to-wear knit coats in sunny shades of orange, lemon and melon. The coats had miniature short collars and patch pockets. Each was worn with a matching turban to bind behind the hair.

Enzo put a blast of color into brightly striped and printed velvet. For the biggest, baggiest knickers of the season Enzo used velvet printed in giant checks of turquoise and coffee. They were worn with a black top banded in velvet, black stockings and low-heeled patent leather pumps.

Stipkala, Mrs. Hugh Stephen with David and Susan, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Philips and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Warner, Mrs. Muriel Grimston, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. B. Hawkshaw

Also signing the register were Capt. and Mrs. M. D. A. Darling of Sidney, E.C.

Bride's Father Sang

Rev. Emma W. Spilley officiated at the recent wedding in Victoria Truth Centre that united Rema Mary Stoffer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald P. Stoffer, 1677 Christmas Ave., and Ronald Murray Dunnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Dunnett, 1639 Kisher Ave.

Mr. Stoffer gave his daughter in marriage and also sang "At Dawning" during the ceremony. He was accompanied by Mrs. S. Chiverall.

A ballerina-length gown of white nylon chiffon over taffeta was worn by the bride with a brooch belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. R. Stoffer. The shoulder length veil misted from a headpiece of lily of the valley and she carried a bouquet of red and white carnations and trailing feathered carnations.

Her wedding ring was also "something old" as it had belonged to the groom's grandmother.

Matron of honor, Mrs. N. Henson, wore a ballerina-length gown of blue sparkle organza over taffeta. The bride's sister, Miss Wendy Stoffer, was flower girl. She wore a dress of white nylon organza over taffeta. Flowers they carried were arranged by the bride's grandmother.

Ronald G. Knight was best man while ushers were the bride's brother, Dennis Stoffer, and Norman Henson.

At a small reception in the home of the bride's parents a three-tier wedding cake, made and decorated by her mother, centred the table. Ken Stoffer proposed the toast to his niece's happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon in the United States, the bride wore a double knit three-piece suit in beige with brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunnett are now living at 727 Esquimalt Road.

DEAR ABBY...

Open House—All Season!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Summer is here and so are the parasites who flock to our summer cottage and "vacation" at our expense in the name of friendship. Last summer I worked 16 hours a day cooking and cleaning for three solid months. No time off either. Sunday was our "busiest" day. I am not young any more and I can't take much more of this. Must we sell our lovely summer cottage and give up our own pleasure because other people take advantage of us? I should add, my husband is the type who is always saying, "Come to the cottage!" What does he care? He sits in the boat all day.

ALMOST DEAD. DEAR ABBY: Your problem is your husband, not your friends. To some people, "come to the cottage" is a gift-ed invitation. When your husband quits inviting people you'll have your privacy. And those who come uninvited should be told, "Tsk, tsk—we're all filled up!" (It's true—you are.)

DEAR ABBY: I've solved the "food-wasting" problem. When eating out, I order a full course meal and a child's portion meal. My eleven-year-old daughter eats the full course meal, and I eat the child's portion. By the way, I am 6'1" and weigh 185.

CHARLES IN TAMPA. DEAR CHARLES: Wonderful! But how tall is your daughter, and what does she weigh?

DEAR ABBY: When I was 18 I left the farm and went to the city. My first job was waiting on tables. A nice-looking man (let's call him "Carl") came in often. He was very polite and I liked his smile. One evening, just before quitting time, "Carl" came in and asked to drive me home. I accepted, and invited him in for coffee. The longer we talked, the more I liked him. He told me his wife was paralyzed from the waist down, but he'd never leave her. When he said good night, he blurted out, "I would like so much to hold a whole woman in my arms again." Within six months I was involved with him up to my neck. One day I picked up a newspaper and my eyes fell on a picture of a Ladies' Champion Bowling Team. The captain was "Mrs. Carl..." (Same name as my friend.) I thought it must be a coincidence, so I called the team manager and asked where Mrs. Carl—"a husband worked. Sure enough, she was his wife. Many years have passed. Abby, I'm older now, and smarter. I'm in business and have met many men, and if every wife who was supposed to be on her death bed really was, there'd be wall to wall funeral homes from coast to coast.

(Sign me) GULLIBLE.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Must You Become Fat Just Because Your Mother Is?

A reader asks, "Do I have to be fat just because my mother was?" The answer: No, with a reservation. The reservation is that you must be alerted to a few facts.

Over and over again we hear overweight persons say, "I can't help it, fat just runs in my family. My mother is 50 pounds overweight and so is her sister. All the women in my mother's family are fat."

Lowman

It is true that the glandular composition can be inherited but, much more likely, inherited family eating habits are the problem. And these are strong! They are especially tenacious because they are closely linked with emotional experiences.

I know this from experience. Even now when we have a dark cool day, with a slight drizzle, I think of onion sandwiches, hot tea and shrimp salad. Why? Because on some wonderful days when I was a very young girl I walked miles on country roads in such an atmosphere and when I returned to my parents' summer camp that is what greeted me.

Sound and fragrance have the same strong nostalgic appeal. I never listen to a downpour, one which seems to come from a huge bucket of water turned upside down, that I do not think of Tampico, Mexico. I am assailed by all of the aura and glamor of the deep tropics.

However, I think that food habits are the strongest of all. Every home has its special dishes. Children look forward to them when they come home for a visit. This is wonderful and we should keep these as part of our life. The real problem is the general and daily and usual habit of eating. Perhaps your overweight is a reflection of your inheritance in this way.

There is no doubt that the battle of the bulge becomes more strenuous from middle age on. But just because your mother was overweight does not indicate that you must be. If any of you missed my Nine-Day Reducing Diet which gives you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in nine days, and would like to have it, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Marilyn Tambling Wed In Recent Ceremony

Canon J. Rogers officiated at the quiet ceremony in St. Columba's Anglican Church when Marilyn Joan Tambling and Richard Allen Kraeker exchanged marriage vows.

Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tambling of La goon, B.C., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kraeker of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white linen suit, white hat with forehead veil, white accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

Bridesmaid, Miss Brenda Kraeker, wore a turquoise linen suit with white accessories and corsage of white rosebuds.

Donald Logan was the best man.

At a reception in the Tulip Avenue home of the groom's parents, Ed Gloor proposed the toast to the bride. A two-tier wedding cake set under pink bells and white doves centred the bride's table.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Tambling, D. Kraeker and Mrs. B. Anderson, all of Vancouver.

Following a honeymoon up-Island, the couple will make their home here.

Franklin R. Boy Killed at Regina

A four-year-old boy from Franklin River, near Port Alberni, was one of three persons killed in a car-train collision just outside Regina on Monday.

Police identified the boy as Brian Dale Nurnberg. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clifton of Del Bonite, Alta, were also killed.

Irvin Nurnberg, 32, father of the boy, is in fair condition in Regina hospital. He was a faller for MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

The two-engine freight train, heading south out of Regina, dragged the car 500 feet down the tracks after the collision at a level-crossing on the Trans-Canada Highway one mile west of Regina.

Police said Mr. Nurnberg, who was on vacation, was driving the car.

An inquest was opened but was adjourned indefinitely.

The accident was the second involving B.C. residents on the Trans-Canada Highway west of Regina recently. A man and two girls from B.C. were killed in a car-truck collision on June 8.

DUNCAN—Unsettled and cloudy weather was blamed for a drop in entries in the Maple Bay Yacht Club annual water sports Sunday.

MAPLE BAY—Winner of the Maple Bay yacht Club North Reef handicap sailing race Sunday was John King's "Zot," a lightning class boat.

Second place was taken by the "Hyack," skippered by Mike Hanson.

Vic Palmer's six-meter sloop "Alana" was third, and first of 17 entries to cross the finish line. The race started at 10 a.m. and concluded shortly after 3 p.m.

IRON CURTAIN TO BE LIFTED FOR TOURISTS

VIENNA, Austria (CP)—An Austrian newspaper reported Sunday that Communist Hungary plans to abolish the Iron Curtain "death strip" along the border with Austria.

Volkshblatt said in a front-page headline: "The end for the Iron Curtain? Barbed wire to be removed."

No immediate Hungarian comment was available on the report which Volkshblatt said came from Budapest.

The paper, without disclosing its source, said the Hungarian regime obviously seeks to attract more tourists to Hungary and for that reason has decided to remove the ugly barbed wire and machine-gun watch towers along the border.

The Artist and the Yogi

After touring Europe for one year under a Canada Council grant, artist Herbert Siebner has returned to Victoria with an old friend, Alfred Schmieleski, a painter turned yogi.

The yogi plans to give courses in Hatha Yoga (physical culture) for beginners and advance students, in the city.

Here he is sitting in the lotus pose, a difficult yoga exercise for occidentals.

The two men were students and graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Berlin, Germany.

It was just luck which brought the two men together after 13 years separation. While in Germany, Mr. Siebner searched for his friend high and low but wasn't able to locate his whereabouts.

One day he spotted a painting by Mr. Schmieleski in a Berlin art gallery. Upon inquiring for his friend's address he was told that the painter had immigrated to Canada and was living in Toronto.

Upon return to Canada, Mr. Siebner finally found his friend on a small island in an Ontario lake, contemplating and communing with nature.

TAPE RECORDING

Christine's Story Being Transcribed

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard shorthand writers worked through the night transcribing a 10-hour tape recording by call girl Christine Keeler telling of her tangled affairs.

The police stenographers went into action Monday after Canadian-born Robin Drury, a former member of the RCMP who was once Miss Keeler's business manager, got the recording from a London bank vault.

Chief Justice Lord Parker ordered the tape seized Monday and any relevant extracts handed to lawyers for Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, Negro jazz singer and Christine's former lover.

Gordon is appealing a three-year jail sentence for beating up the red-haired party girl. Christine has disavowed the tape, saying she was under the influence of drink and drugs when she made it.

A green-eyed blonde flew into London from Rome Monday night and said she is ready to give evidence in the Profumo scandal.

The girl, Ylia Suchenek, 22, said she was a close friend of Capt. Eugene Ivanov, Soviet naval attaché who shared Christine's favors with former war minister John Profumo.

Miss Suchenek, a Czech-born Austrian citizen, said she heard in Rome that Ivanov is dead.

"It is very sad," she said. "Yevgeny Eugene and I were close friends. We used to play poker together."

37% OF VOTE

Socreds Win Byelection; NDP Fourth

By FRANK RUTTER

Social Credit held Columbia easily in Monday's provincial byelection, but the grip slipped a little. The government candidate, Frank Greenwood, held a fat lead in early returns and won by 433 votes.

60,000 Federal Civil Servants Get Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Retroactive pay increases for 60,000 federal employees, dating back to last Oct. 1, were announced today by Finance Minister Gordon.

Postal workers, customs and immigration employees, building cleaning staffs and technical workers are the main groups benefitting from the pay boosts, estimated to cost some $17,000,000 a year.

Mr. Gordon's announcement said that apart from hospital employees this is the last major group of federal employees to be dealt with in the current cycle of salary reviews.

He said the government plans to continue the policy of periodic reviews under which salaries of various groups come up for consideration every two years.

"The government is pushing forward with the preparatory work that must be done with a view to introducing a system of collective bargaining for the

The big surprise was a strong second place for the Conservative, Golden physician Dr. Al Trot, and the flop of the New Democratic Party, which finished last, against all predictions.

The result:

Socred Greenwood, 1,103; Conservative Trot, 670; Liberal Bob Keenleyside, 635; New Democratic Bev Harris, 594.

Social Credit's popular vote declined from 42 to 37 per cent.

TORIES SOAR

The Tories soared spectacularly from 6 to 22.2 per cent.

Premier Bennett immediately hailed his victory as complete vindication of his two-river policy, and repudiation of the NDP.

It was undoubtedly the NDP's support of the McNaughton plan for Columbia River development that sank its candidate, Bev Harris, runner-up to the late R. O. Newton, Socred victor in 1960, whose death in February forced the byelection.

The McNaughton plan would flood the Columbia valley, right down the centre of the riding. The Columbia treaty plan would have no direct effect.

Although Mr. Harris publicly denounced the McNaughton plan, he was contradicted by national NDP leader Tommy Douglas in a fierce attack on the treaty at Golden Saturday.

Social Credit forced the issue with an intensive campaign to "keep Columbia dry."

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, disappointed by the NDP's poor showing, blamed it on its "honest and forthright support for the McNaughton plan."

He said it was the only riding in B.C. where this policy would hinder the NDP.

NO EARLY VOTE

A loss for Premier Bennett would have been an indicator his government faces trouble in the next general election.

"A great vote of confidence," he beamed.

But he dispelled any idea of an early general election to cash in on it.

The most elated reaction came from Conservative leader Davie Fulton, who campaigned hard for Dr. Trot.

"The results destroy for ever the Bennett-created myth that socialism is the alternative to Social Credit," he said.

"They establish beyond question that the Conservatives are the alternative."

Dr. Trot's main support came in Golden, where he ran only 12 votes behind Mr. Greenwood.

The MLA-elect is 42, a maintenance man for the CPR telecommunications branch at Invermere.

Weighting over 240 pounds, he was publicly described by Attorney-General Robert Bonner as having "more guts" than anyone else in the riding.

Socred cabinet ministers and MLAs did most of his campaigning, stressing the successful B.C.-Ottawa Columbia development pact and local prosperity, mainly as a result of the new Rogers Pass Highway which has made Golden a boom-town.

A total of 38 out-of-town politicians, including 28 MLAs took part in the campaign.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault

Satellites Present New Threat

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—A new type of military threat—enemy satellites—was foreseen today by the head of the Royal Canadian Air Force in testimony before the special Commons committee on defence.

In discussing the present danger, Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap asserted that the threat to North America includes both manned bombers and ballistic missiles, all of which would be expected to carry nuclear weapons.

The switch in the threat from bombers to missiles was taking place less rapidly than expected said the air marshal in his submission, thus the Soviet bomber force would continue to be the greater threat for "several years to come."

But, he added, in the "not too distant future, we will also be faced with enemy satellites overhead in an operational role."

OTTAWA (CP)—President Kennedy today instructed State Secretary Dean Rusk to initiate negotiations immediately with the Canadian government looking towards harnessing of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal waters for a vast new supply of electricity in the Maine-New Brunswick area.

In a White House rose garden ceremony where he accepted the interior secretary's report on Passamaquoddy, Kennedy described the project as one which may become "one of the most astonishing and beneficial joint enterprises which the people of the United States have ever undertaken."

Flanking him at the ceremony were legislators from New England, who heartily en-

Test Ban Hopes Higher

MOSCOW (AP)—U.S. and British delegates met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for about three hours today amid signs of increasing hope for agreement on a formula to outlaw all nuclear weapons tests except those under ground.

The Western delegates — U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman and Science Minister Lord Hailsham of Britain — departed smiling broadly. They drove off together in an American limousine.

Premier Khrushchev opened the talks with Harriman and Hailsham at the Kremlin Monday. Gromyko took over for the Russians today.

Before the three-power negotiators sat down for the second day of the talks, deputy Soviet foreign minister Valerian Zorin was asked by a Western newspaperman if he believed the talks were proceeding satisfactorily.

"In my opinion, yes," Zorin replied.

Under the new setup, like the American Pentagon, will come under one roof in the heart of London and its supreme ministerial chief, the secretary of state for defence, will be responsible for security hitherto carried out by the individual service ministers.

He also will be answerable to Parliament for an annual defence bill of nearly £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000), 400,000, services personnel, and an equal number of civilians.

A defence council will be created under the new setup.

It will consist of the secretary of state for defence; his three ministers of state; the chief of the defence staff (Admiral of the Fleet Earl Mountbatten); the chiefs of the naval, general and air staffs, the chief scientific adviser to the secretary of state (Sir Solly Zuckerman); and the permanent undersecretary of state.

'IMPROVE CONTROL'

Object of the reorganization — part of a British military evolutionary process that has been going on for 6 years — "is to improve the central control of defence policy without impairing the efficiency and morale of the fighting services," the government document said.

"Their separate identities will be preserved," it added.

The white paper said: "The services must preserve their separate identities. In action they are increasingly interdependent. This interdependence must be expected to increase."

"Nevertheless all experience shows that the fighting spirit of the individual man in battle derives largely from his loyalty to his ship, his unit or his squadron."

"Although, however, the three services will remain separate, within the new ministry work will be organized wherever possible on a defence rather than a single-service basis."

'MINISTRY ESSENTIAL'

A unified ministry of defence is essential if the defence budget is to strike a proper balance between commitments, resources and the roles of the services, the document added.

"But major questions of defence policy cannot be discussed in purely military terms"

Pentagon-Style Operation Set

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today announced sweeping defence changes to meet the challenge of the nuclear age and give the nation a new streamlined Pentagon-style setup.

A government white paper detailing the changes said the object is to improve the central control of defence policy without impairing efficiency and morale of the fighting service.

Out go many historic institutions in their present form — including the admiralty, war office and air ministry.

In comes a unified ministry of defence with authority and responsibility for the whole defence effort vested in a single cabinet minister with a top military "supreme" officer — chief of the defence staff.

Scrapped are the portfolios of first lord the admiralty, secretary of state for war and secretary of state for air.

They will be replaced under the defence minister by three ministers of state — each dealing with one of the three services.

Target date for the biggest reorganization in Britain's military history is April 1, 1964.

Under the new setup, like the American Pentagon, will come under one roof in the heart of London and its supreme ministerial chief, the secretary of state for defence, will be responsible for security hitherto carried out by the individual service ministers.

He also will be answerable to Parliament for an annual defence bill of nearly £2,000,000,000 ($6,000,000,000), 400,000, services personnel, and an equal number of civilians.

JOHN EVERHART
... wanted by FBI

Killer Seen On Ferry

A Negro who is among the 10 men most wanted by the FBI in the United States is reported to have been seen recently travelling on a ferry from Tsawwassen to Victoria.

The man is a convicted killer who escaped from a prison in Georgia five years ago.

The FBI in Seattle this morning alerted Canadian police to the presence of John B. Everhart, 40, in this area.

The FBI describe Everhart as a "ruthless" killer who usually carries a .38-calibre revolver. Everhart once shot and wounded a policeman in an attempt to escape arrest.

Everhart has masqueraded as a clergyman interested in sketching and painting. He is known to have sketched and drawn Biblical scenes.

He was undergoing a life sentence for murder when he escaped from jail. Since 1960 he has been considered a "top 10" fugitive by the FBI.

FBI description of him says he is 175 to 187 pounds, 5' 6", heavy build, black hair and brown eyes. He may still dress as a clergyman.

Maritimes Power Project Given Go-Ahead by JFK

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy today instructed State Secretary Dean Rusk to initiate negotiations immediately with the Canadian government looking towards harnessing of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal waters for a vast new supply of electricity in the Maine-New Brunswick area.

In a White House rose garden ceremony where he accepted the interior secretary's report on Passamaquoddy, Kennedy described the project as one which may become "one of the most astonishing and beneficial joint enterprises which the people of the United States have ever undertaken."

Flanking him at the ceremony were legislators from New England, who heartily endorsed the report recommending immediate construction to provide 1,250,000 kilowatts of new power.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who recommended the project to the president Monday, said Canada won't be asked to put up any money but in return for agreement to the proposal, New Brunswick would be able to obtain additional power at cost.

The unique project, featuring more than seven miles of ocean dams, will require gates and locks on the Canadian side of the Passamaquoddy to control the flow of water through giant spinning turbines on the American side.

Harnessing of the Passamaquoddy has been a dream of some for 40 years.

talking about the play, credited on the program to radio writer Charles Chilton. It uses the songs, speeches and recruiting posters of the "war to end wars" to present an impressionistic, satirical comment on the folly of it all.

The generals—Haig, Wilson, French—are lambasted by their own words—a program note says there is nothing fictional in the dialogue. This sometimes seems incredible. In one scene, an American arms manufacturer chummily offers his wares to British and German customers, and in another Field Marshal Haig prays, "On Lord, grant me victory before the Americans arrive."

STRONG CONTRASTS
The course of the war is played out in the framework of a period Pierrot show, pointing up in bitter contrast the victory fever at home and the misery in the trenches.

Girls toss white feathers in the air and sing "We don't want to lose you, but we think you ought to go," the first batch of wounded arrives back in London to find ambulances "for officers only."

In another scene a comedienne in top hat and tails chirps "Belgium put the kibosh on the Kaiser" while in reality Belgian troops are being butchered at Liege.

"This is the most outrageous, outspoken piece of theatrical anti-war propaganda ever," applauds Sunday Telegraph critic Alan Brien.

"A fascinating attempt to recreate vital history," says historian A. J. P. Taylor, with a reservation that the show should have hammered the statesmen as well as the "imbecile" generals.

And Bertrand Russell, the aged earl who leads nuclear disarmament sitdowns, enthused in The Observer: "If there were any way in which I could make people understand how true and important your play is, I should wish to do it."

"I wonder that it has been allowed on a London stage.... You may sweep through the world with this play, past governments and to as many people as authority permits you to reach."

SUIT to recover $3,000 owed on a telephone bill has been launched against actress-singer Judy Garland in London by British lawyer Patrick Coates-Predy. He claims the bill was run up by Miss Garland while she was a tenant at an apartment.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The bridge pairings of Charles Cleworth and Harry Parry and Madge Meachem and Guy Dickson tied Saturday for first place in the weekly tournament sponsored by Victoria Unit, American Contract Bridge League.

Other winners were Les Stewart and Les Isaacson, third; Joan Smith and Jim Duprau, fourth; and Phil Hagel and Paul Smith, fifth.

Wearing Dickensian costumes, members of the Victoria branch, Dickens Fellowship served tea and refreshments at the branch's annual garden party at 565 Marfield Saturday.

The tables were decorated with Charles Dickens' favorite flower, the scarlet geranium. Home-grown raspberries were supplied by Miss Olive Wetherston.

James Morton, 93, one-time assistant to Premier John Oliver, was guest of honor.

A reading from Oliver Twist was given by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Maunsell and a quiz was arranged by Miss J. M. Card.

The yield from Saanich loganberry crop is exceptionally good this year due to ample rainfall in the past two weeks, an official of the Saanich Fruit Growers' Association said today.

The yield is expected to be in the neighborhood of 600 tons.

Picking started about two weeks ago. It is expected to reach its peak this week.

'Good Citizen' Choices Sought

Nominations for Greater Victoria's 1963 Good Citizenship award are open.

Sponsoring Post No. 1 Victoria of the Native Sons of B.C. has asked citizens of Greater Victoria to mail nominations.

The award will be presented in late August.

Former recipients include family food stall convener Mrs. E. E. Harper, Judge J. B. Clearihue, and naturalist Freeman King.

Nominations, stating the reason the nominee qualifies, should be mailed to the group's secretary, R. H. Hiscocks, 609 Trutch.

Choir Boys To Rout Mutineers

A gang of bloodthirsty mutineers will give way to 58 choir boys—"almost angels"—in a Victoria theatre July 23 and 24.

The choir boys are the Little Singers of the Wooden Cross, who will give three concerts in the Royal Theatre.

And the mutineers are in Mutiny on the Bounty, a movie whose removal for those two days required the agreement of both Famous Players and MGM—and the agreement took some getting.

Two local men who are handling the promotion, Earl Aune and Max Chagnon, won't say just how they managed to persuade the companies to relax the 30-day contract for the Bounty film, but it was done.

What the mutineers gave way to is a 32-year-old Roman Catholic choir based at Granby, Que., and now operating out of Montreal.

It has almost 2,000 members, ranging in age from eight to 18, but they don't often sing all together.

Their concerts are usually small ones, put on by small touring groups like the one to perform here.

The description "almost angels" was applied to them in the movie of that name in which they starred. It visited Victoria about a month ago.

There will be evening performances both nights of the engagement, and an afternoon concert July 24.

Tickets are available through some Roman Catholic parishes and through Eaton's box office.

Arthur Mayse

Like most fishermen who got into the game as soon as their chubby little hands were capable of cranking a reel, I incline to take it for granted that everyone knows how to choose, put together and employ a salmon outfit.

That this isn't so has been impressed on me with startling frequency since school let out and the family vacation season began. I'm now aware that right here in a city practically besieged by the world's finest sport-fish are people who'd like to try their luck, but don't know one end of a rod from the other.

Any good tackle salesman into whose territory these wander will send them away well-equipped and instructed.

Not all clerks are knowledgeable, though, even in this fisherman's town. More than once, I'd stood by itching to butt in while a would-be angler was lumbered up with ill-assorted gear.

So today, I suggest we take $20 and go choose a rig-out which I guarantee will catch salmon in most of our holiday waters.

Fiberglass makes an unbeatable salmon rod, combining springiness with backbone. For less than 10 of our 20 bucks, we can buy a dandy.

The one I've chosen is just under seven feet long. It's made in two sections, connected by a ferrule. The butt, tipped with a rubber knob so it won't bruise when you dig it into your stomach for extra leverage when playing a lunker, is of hardwood, with a metal "seat" to which the reel is secured by a screw fitting.

The tip, a tapered section of translucent green fiberglass is fitted with rings or guides through which you thread the line. The last ring is the tip-top; when rigging in haste, I usually manage to miss it.

This rod has cost us a shade under $9. You might smash it with an axe, or by slamming a car door on it, but no salmon ever will.

We can spend a small fortune on a reel, called a winch in like Walton's time. But bypassing the fancy star drags and such, here for less than $4 is a black bakelite number made in Australia.

It has two handles riveted to the frame, a finger-operated click or check to keep the line from spooling off too freely, and a drag which you can adjust to secure more or less tension as required.

Salmon lines, back when I started fishing, were either of braided or twisted linen known as "cuttyhunk," or a sleazy substance called Japanese gut which was wiry when dry and limp as soaked spaghetti when wet.

We grumbled about these till nylon came along. Then we ditched them in favor of that infinitely worthier synthetic which the salesman is now winching onto your reel over the 30-foot length of cuttyhunk to which he joined it. Purpose of the line "backing" is to cushion the reel spool against the pressure of the compacted nylon.

We've chosen 20-pound test monofilament. That's plenty strong for our needs.

On the end of the nylon goes a rectangular chrome-finished flasher or dodger, designed to attract any fish within sight of its zig-zag gleam.

Secured to the business end of the dodger is an 18-inch length of nylon—a snip off your line will do—and from that will dangle the lure.

At this point, firmly ignoring all other barbed dainties, we are going to insist on two spoons. They are called Tom Macks, and both the little size four silver and the larger four-and-a-half of silver and brass in combination have been killing salmon on this coast since Caddy was a searworm.

We'll toss in a couple of slip sinkers designed to slide down to the flasher when a fish hits; and that's the package. For under $17, tax included, you're equipped.

To use the gear, slow your rented boat to the pace of the others on the fishing grounds, ease spoon and dodger overboard, clip a four-ounce lead about 12 feet back of the dodger, and feed out between 40 and 50 pulls of line.

You're in business, and I hope you will soon be reaching in for the gaff or net included in your boat rental. Let me add that your chances of hooking a salmon are as good as mine, even though my tackle kit is so heavy I grunt when I lift it!

Six Islanders Chosen For 4-H Trip To Big Toronto Fair

Vancouver Island teenagers took the lion's share of top awards during a provincial 4-H conference at New Denver in the Kootenays last week.

It was provincial 4-H Week, and 84 members of participating clubs competed at New Denver for gold watches and a trip to the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto in November.

FIVE FROM SAANICH

Of the 14 chosen, six were from Vancouver Island, five of these from Saanich.

But the biggest prize went to 18-year-old John Stanlake, who has just completed Grade 13 at Claremont Senior Secondary School.

He was winner of the coveted $700 Canadian National Exhibition scholarship, which he will use at UBC, where he will begin studying for a degree in agriculture next term.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken E. Stanlake, 7012 East Saanich, he will be presented the scholarship at the CNE in Toronto next month.

WEDNESDAY MEETINGS

Victoria (Chinatown) Lions Club: 6:30 p.m., Bamboo Gardens; business meeting.
South Van Isle Lions Club: 7 p.m., Chez Marcel; Lion Bob Keene, "Projects and Policy for 1963."

The Saanich Jersey Calf Club member was presented a citizenship award by former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker last April, and later represented the province at an international conference in Washington, D.C.

District agriculturalist Ken Jameson boasted of the record of his 4-H youngsters. Last year seven won the Royal Winter Fair trip.

"It seems we have the lion's share again this year," he said today.

The lucky girls and one boy from Saanich who will make the trip are: Cheryl Moyer, 17, of 6680 Woodward, a member of the North Saanich Goat Club and student at Claremont High;

Nancy Miller, 17, of 8705 Aldous Terrace, Sidney, a member of the Saanich Home Arts Club and student at North Saanich High;

Mary Lord, 17, 1070 Cyprus, Sidney, also a Saanich Home Arts Club member, now studying at home.

Wendy Baker, at 16 the youngest of the winners, of 1401 Mount Douglas Cross Road, who belongs to the Saanich Jersey Calf Club and attends Mount Douglas High;

And Ray Reimer, 18, 1388 Tapping, Sidney, a North Saanich High student and member of the Saanich Ayrshire Calf Club.

Salmon net men voted by 81.7 per cent in favor of striking for higher prices, plus welfare improvements. The companies want to maintain two 1962 price levels and reduce two others.

BIG WEEK

They will be joined by Wendy Featherstonhaugh, a Comox Lamb Club member, for the week-long trip to the East.

While there, the winners will visit Prime Minister Lester Pearson, Niagara Falls, and attend a National Hockey League game.

The trip was awarded following a series of examinations on citizenship, current affairs and other related subjects.

FINAL OFFER

The firms today extended a final offer to fishermen—represented by United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.)—provided the offer is presented to the entire membership for approval, with or without union executive recommendation.

Trollermen, meanwhile, will meet tonight in ports all along the coast to decide whether they will stay out of action for an indeterminate period while the net men strike, or continue to fish and dispose of their catches in the U.S. market.

They have agreed not to violate the strike on the Canadian side by landing catches domestically.

NO SCABBING

American fishermen's unions do not recognize the UFAWU and affiliated Native Brotherhood, so there is no question of "scabbing."

Trollermen claim they are in the midst of their best season, while net fishermen have two weeks to go before reaching their peak season. This could mean a loss of $2,000 for the average trollerman if the strike continued for two weeks, Mr. Williams said.

HALF HERE

About half the Victoria-based fleet is tied up at Fishermen's Wharf, about 60 vessels, with the others probably remaining up-coast until the situation is resolved.

If trollers go back to sea, it

Trustees Come Out For Supps

Greater Victoria School Board Monday night endorsed a resolution calling for reinstatement of supplemental examinations for Grade 12 students.

The resolution was submitted by the V.I. branch of the B.C. School Trustees' Association.

The trustees gave these reasons for the request:

Some employers will not hire persons without junior matriculation;

Students going to vocational schools, particularly nursing schools, must have university entrance;

Expenses involved for a student to repeat a year, possibly for failing one subject.

POOR RESULTS

John Gough, district superintendent of schools, pointed out the University of British Columbia has had poor results from students who gained entrance after passing supplemental exams.

He said supplementals were "a method of keeping the gates closed to the hoards."

But George Curran, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, said students should receive the second chance given to adults who attend evening classes.

The resolution named nine institutions of higher learning in Alberta, Washington, Oregon and B.C. which would admit a student who gained his junior matriculation by writing supplemental examinations.

Car Plunges Off Summit Of Malahat

The remains of a black hotrod are spread over 75 feet of mountainside off the Malahat, 20 miles north of Victoria, with the young driver in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was identified as Kenneth Guest, a 21-year-old married man, residing at 2259 Dalhousie Street.

He received injuries to the head, face and knee. No report was available on his condition.

The car failed to make a turn near the Lookout just north of the Malahat summit, crashed through a guard rail, plunged down a boulder-strewn hillside, landing against a tree some 75 feet downhill, at about 11 a.m.

NO WITNESSES

There were no witnesses nor anything to indicate the cause of the accident, although the condition of the smashed guard rail indicated high speed. There were no tire burns on the highway.

Two wrecking trucks were trying with little success to retrieve the car at press time. The roof was completely flattened as the car came to rest upside down.

The driver was alone in the vehicle. He was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Road Access Talks Seen With Saanich

Opening of Rose Street as an artery connecting downtown Victoria with Woodward's new multi-million dollar shopping area on the city boundary could lead to discussion with Saanich to provide easier access, Mayor R. B. Wilson said today.

The mayor noted that Rose Street extended to the city boundary at Tolmie continues as a nondescript, half-paved Maple Street in Saanich, rather than a direct connection with Trans-Canada Highway or Patricia Bay Highway—that is, Douglas Street.

The city is hoping that Rose will take much of the burden off Douglas, especially leading to Fountain Circle, soon to be eliminated in favor of a complex electronically-actuated traffic lights and level intersection.

NO MOVE

Saanich has made no move toward improvement of the intersection of Maple Street, although widening and making turnoffs onto Tolmie or through to Cloverdale and the highway would improve traffic flow.

Mayor Wilson said Tolmie is a good street and would support much of the traffic. In addition, it is proposed to have lights at Tolmie and Douglas, which would aid traffic on and off Douglas at that point.

The city is working on the southern end of Rose Street now, making a connection along the old V and S railway right of way from Bay to Queens at Blanshard.

Members of traffic committee today stood by their decision to eliminate parking along the west side of Government between Pandora and Humboldt as a means of aiding traffic flow, replacing the lost parking partly through the new Yates Street parking facility.

Trollermen Decide Tonight

The president of B.C. trollermen's organization protested today that these men have never been allowed to take part in a strike vote such as the one leading to a tie-up of the coast fishery Saturday.

Dick Williams, of Pacific Trollers' Association, speaks on behalf of 3,000 trollermen on the coast—150 of them in the Victoria-Sidney-Sooke area—who are idled by a strike of salmon net fishermen against B.C. Fisheries Association.

Salmon net men voted by 81.7 per cent in favor of striking for higher prices, plus welfare improvements. The companies want to maintain two 1962 price levels and reduce two others.

TODAY'S TOURISTS

Nothing fascinates young tourists quite as much as the totem poles in Thunderbird Park.

Dick Gray, 7, and brother Jim, 9, examined the poles there this morning in detail—eyeing them, rubbing them, and climbing on them under nervous parental eyes.

It's the first trip away from home for the youngsters, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Gray, of Portland, Oregon, last visited these parts six years ago.

"We've taken the boys out to Butchart's Gardens, and we've been through the parks," says Mrs. Gray.

"But they're just fascinated by these totem poles."

Today the Grays leave for Vancouver—so the boys can see the totem poles in Stanley Park.

They'll travel through the interior and back home through central Washington after spending two days in Vancouver.

"But what's the sense in having an eclipse if you can't look at it?"

Individual instruction will not be given, and musicians are expected to have their own instruments.

Classes will be held at Lansdowne Junior High School on Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Socreds Win
Byelection;
NDP Fourth

By FRANK RUTTER

Social Credit held Columbia easily in Monday's provincial by-election, but the grip slipped a little.

The government candidate, Frank Greenwood, held a fat lead in early returns and won by 433 votes.

The big surprise was a Although Mr. Harris pub- strong second place for the lily denouced the McNaugh- Conservative, Golden physi- tion plan, he was contradicted cian Dr. Al Trott, and the flop by national NDP leader of the New Democratic Party, Tommy Douglas in a fierce which finished last, against allattack on the treaty at Golden predictions.

The result: Social Credit forced the is- Sue with an intensive cam- paign to "keep Columbia dry." Conservative Trott, 670; Lib- Opposition Leader Robert eral Bob Keenleyside, 635; New Strachan, disappointed by the Democratic Bev Harris, 594. NDP's poor showing, blamed Social Credit's popular vote it on its "honest and forth- right support for the Mc- Naughton plan."

He said it was the only rid- ing in B.C. where this policy would hinder the NDP.

A loss for Premier Bennett ly hailed his victory as com- vidence of his two government faces trouble river policy, and repudiation in the next general election, of the NDP.

"A great vote of confidence," he said.

But he dispelled any idea of Naughton plan for Columbia early general election to River development that sankish in on it.

The most elated reaction came runner-up to the late R. O from Conservative leader Davie Newton, Sacred victor in 1960. Fulton, who campaigned hard whose death in February for Dr. Trott.

"The results destroy for ever the McNaughton plan would the Bennett-created myth that flood the Columbia valley, socialism is the alternative to right down the centre of the Social Credit," he said.

The Columbia treaty "They establish beyond ques- tion that the Conservatives are the alternative."

Dr. Trott's main support came in Golden, where he ran only 12 votes behind Mr. Greenwood.

The MLA-elect is 42, a main- tenance man for the CPR tele- communications branch at In- vermere.

Weighing over 240 pounds, he was publicly described by At- torney-General Robert Bonner as having "more guts" than any- one else in the riding.

Sacred cabinet ministers and MLAs did most of his campaign- ing, stressing the successful B.C.-Ottawa Columbia develop- ment pact and local prosperity, mainly as a result of the new Rogers Pass Highway which has made Golden a boom-town.

A total of 38 out-of-town poli- ticians, including 28 MLAs took part in the campaign.

MOSCOW (AP)—U.S. and British delegates met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for about three hours today amid signs of in- creasing hope for agreement on a formula to outlaw all nuclear weapons tests except those under ground.

The Western delegates — U.S. State Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman and Science Minister Lord Hailsham of Britain — departed smiling broadly. They drove off to- gether in an American limou- sine.

Premier Khrushchev opened the talks with Harriman and Hailsham at the Kremlin Mon- day. Gromyko took over for the Russians today.

Before the three-power nego- tiators sat down for the second day of the talks, deputy Soviet foreign minister Valerian Zorin was asked by a Western newspaperman if he believed the talks were proceeding satisfactorily.

"In my opinion, yes," Zorin replied.

A Negro who is among the 10 men most wanted by the FBI in the United States is reported to have been seen recently travelling on a ferry from Tsawwassen to Vic- toria.

The man is a convicted killer who escaped from a prison in Georgia five years ago.

The FBI in Seattle this morning alerted Canadian police to the presence of John B. Everhart, 40, in this area.

The FBI describe Everhart as a "ruthless" killer who usually carries a .38-calibre revolver. Everhart once shot

FEDERAL SERVICE
GETS PAY BOOST

The Artist and the Yogi

After touring Europe for one year under a Canada Council grant, artist Herbert Siebner has returned to Victoria with an old friend, Alfred Schmielewski, a painter turned yogi.

The yogi plans to give courses in Hatha Yoga (physical culture) for beginners and advance students, in the city.

Here he is sitting in the lotus pose, a yoga exercise difficult for occidentals.

The two men were students and graduated from the Academy of Fine Arts in Berlin, Germany.

It was just luck which brought the two men together after 13 years separation. While in Germany, Mr. Siebner searched for his friend high and low but wasn't able to locate his whereabouts.

One day he spotted a painting by Mr. Schmielewski in a Berlin art gallery. Upon inquiring for his friend's address he was told that the painter had immigrated to Canada and was living in Toronto.

Upon return to Canada, Mr. Siebner finally found his friend on a small island in an Ontario lake, contemplat- ing and communing with nature.

Maritimes Power Project
Given Go-Ahead by JFK

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Kennedy today instructed State Secretary Dean Rusk to initiate negotiations immediately with the Canadian government looking towards harnessing of the Passamaquoddy Bay tidal waters for a vast new supply of electricity in the Maine-New Brunswick area.

In a White House rose garden ceremony where he accepted the interior secretary's report on Passamaquoddy, Kennedy described the project as one which may become "one of the most astonishing and beneficial joint enterprises which the people of the United States have ever undertaken."

Flanking him at the ceremony were legislators from New England, who heartily endorsed the report recommend- ing immediate construction to provide 1,250,000 kilowatts of new power.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, who recommended the project to the president Mon- day, said Canada won't be asked to put up any money but in return for agreement to the proposal, New Brunswick would be able to obtain additional power at cost.

The unique project, featuring more than seven miles of ocean dams, will require gates and locks on the Canadian side of the Passamaquoddy to control the flow of water through giant spinning turbines on the American side.

Harnessing of the Passama- quoddy has been a dream of some for 40 years.

OTTAWA (CP)—Retroactive pay increases for 60,000 federal employees, dating back to last Oct. 1, were announced today by Finance Minister Gordon.

Postal workers, customs and immigration employ- ees, building cleaning staffs and technical workers are the main groups benefitting from the pay boosts, esti- mated to cost some $17,000,000 a year.

Mr. Gordon's announcement said that apart from hospital employees this is the last major group of federal employees to be dealt with in the current cycle of salary reviews.

He said the government plans to continue the policy of per-

FOR DEFENCE

Single Command
U.K. Proposal

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain today announced sweeping defence changes to meet the challenge of the nuclear age and give the Pentagon-style setup.

A government white paper detailing the changes said the object is to improve the central control of defence policy without impairing efficiency and morale of the fighting service.

Out go many historic institu- tions in their present form—in- cluding the admiralty, war of- fice and air ministry.

In comes a unified ministry of defence with authority and responsibility for the whole defence effort vested in a single cabinet minister with a top mili- tary "supreme" officer—chief of the defence staff.

Scrapped are the portfolios of first lord the admiralty, sec- retary of state for war and sec- retary of state for air.

They will be replaced under the defence minister by three ministers of state—each dealing with one of the three services. Target date for the biggest reorganization in Britain's mili- tary history is April 1, 1964.

UNDER ONE ROOF

The new unified command, like the American Pentagon, will come under one roof in the heart of London and its su- preme ministerial chief, the secretary of state for defence, will be responsible for security hitherto carried out by the in- dividual service ministers.

He also will be answerable to Parliament for an annual de- fence bill of nearly £2,000,000, 000 ($6,000,000,000), 400,000, ser- vices personnel, and an equal number of civilians.

A defence council will be cre- ated under the new setup.

It will consist of the secretary of state for defence; his three

TAPE RECORDING

Christine's Story
Being Transcribed

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard shorthand writers worked through the night transcribing a 10-hour tape re- cording by call girl Christine Keeler telling of her tangled affairs.

The police stenographers went into action Monday soon after Canadian-born Robin Drury, a former member of the RCAF who was once Miss Keeler's business manager, got the recording from a Lon- don bank vault.

Chief Justice Lord Parker ordered the tape seized Mon- day and any relevant extracts handed to lawyers for Aloy- sius (Lucky) Gordon, Negro jazz singer and Christine's former lover.

Gordon is appealing a three- year jail sentence for beat- ing up the red-haired party- girl. Christine has disavowed the tape, saying she was under the influence of drink and drugs when she made it.

A green-eyed blonde flew into London from Rome Monday night and said she is ready to give evidence in the Profumo scandal.

The girl, Ylia Suchenek, 22, said she was a close friend of Capt. Eugene Ivanov, Soviet naval attache who shared Christine's fav- ors with former war min- ister John Profumo.
